Page 2:2 - At the death of Mrs. Grant - Edinburgh papers announce the death on the 7th of November in the 84th year of her age of Mrs. Ann GRANT of Laggan widow of the Rev. James GRANT minister of Laggan-inverness-shire. Mrs. GRANT was a remarkable woman. She was the daughter of an officer in the British Army serving in the American Colonies before the war of the Revolution. For several years she was domesticated in the Schuyler family in Albany or rather for the most part at the county seat of the Schuylers in Watervliet. Portions of her time were passed in New York and also among the gentry in the interior. She was a visitor at the Mansion of Sir William JOHNSON and also at the Court of King Hendrick at the Canajoharie Castle. Hendrick was the last of the Mohawk Kings "so called". He fell at Lake George under Sir William JOHNSON in 1755. When the British government determined to erect a formidable fort at Oswego Mrs. GRANT though quite young was with the ladies of the officers of the Army who accompanied
