Mr. ROACH commenced work at Mr. IRELANDS on Monday the 18th. He said he had followed the sea for some years, came from Ireland to New York as ships carpenter, fore part of June, on board some ship which was old and leaky - that he and some others left the ship clandestinely - and being out of cash, they left a chest of tools inpledge for a week's board - came to Albany on a Saturday - and had left a bundle of clothes at a house near the Railroad Depot, said also that he left a wife in Ireland, County not remembered, living at one of his brothers - had a sister or niece at New York, whom he wished to find a place for in the country. He was aged about 40, drank no spirits while at IRELANDS and appeared to be a steady intelligent man. (Tribune please copy)

Page 2:3 - BODY FOUND - The body of the boy LEROY who was drowned in the River just above the Waterford Bridge, by falling through an air hole in the ice last winter was found floating near Whipple's Oil Cloth Factory on Sunday morning last. His remains were much disfigured and was only identified by his clothing. An inquest was held by Cor. CASWELL and the verdict found of accidental death by drowning. The finding of these remains will prove of great satisfaction to an afflicted family, as his father had traveled the entire distance of the River to New York, on both sides of it, in search of them, and had advertised liberal rewards in nearly all the counties contiguous to to wit. The citizens of Waterford have also felt a deep interest in the recovery of this body and have spent many days in searching for it. (from Lansingburgh Democrat)
