OCTOBER 30, 1850

Page 2:1 - On Thursday last, a young man, named Matthew FANEWCON, aged about 18 years, employed by Messrs. ROY & Co., in this Village, in grinding butts and hinges, was accidentally caught by the belting of the machinery, and carried over and over at the rate of 60 revolutions per minute. He was extricated as soon as possible, but so horribly mangled, that he almost immediately expired. He had been in the country but a few weeks, and had only a sister residing here.

Page 2:3 - ACCIDENT - A collier named Richard J. ROWE from Sand Lake, Rensselaer Co., having sold out his load of coal, was employed to tow a boat from West Troy to the dry dock (Aqueduct) on the Western Canal, on Tuesday last, When near the Acqueduct, the clavis of the whiffletree broke, and the evener flew back and hit him in the abdomen, he driving behind the horses. There was no medical assistance at hand, and he got on another boat and arrived at the Cohoes Hotel the next day, where every attention was bestowed upon him. Inflammation and mortification ensued, and he died on Thursday morning at 5 o'clock. He left a wife and five children, and as we learn, a man of much respectability. His body was conveyed away ^{on} Thursday, by his friends for burial. (from the Cohoes Cataract)

- MURDER ARREST - Yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock a man named James TOOL, was pushed into the River by the Nail Factory Dock, from coal boat #22 by the captain of the boat, and was drown. TOOL had been working for the captain, when a dispute arose about his pay, and both parties becoming excited, the captain rushed upon TOOL and threw him into the River as above stated. The Captain's name is Reuben ALEXANDER. He was immediately arrested by Officer RUSSELL and lodged in jail to await an examination. (from the Troy Budget)

The examination of Capt. ALEXANDER before the Police Court, on a charge of causing the death of James TOOL, resulted in his committal for trial for the next circuit Court, for murder. (Troy Post)
