he passed her on the road without knowing it. She started on her return and being a stranger held no conversation with anyone. On Wednesday she took the New York & New Haven train, when a gentleman handed her a newspaper which contained an account of the Norwich massacre. She immediately commenced reading a list of those killed and suddenly she dropped the paper&raising her hands exclaimed, "My God, My God, my son is killed." This was her first intimation of her bereavement, and her son had already arrived at home and been consigned to the grave.

Page 2:1 - Coroner WITBECK held an inquest on the 7th inst. at the New Junction, Watervliet on the body of Robert J. MOORE who first attempted to cut his own throat, but not succeeding, he hung himself with a rope which had been used by children as a swing in the upper part of Ellis' Grocery Store. The jury's verdict was that he came to his death by hanging himself.

- MURDER - WIFE KILLED BY HER HUSBAND - Patrick MANYON, living in the Alley between Ohio & Burlington Streets, on Wednesday last had a quarrel with his wife. A fracas ensued, during which he struck her with a stick breaking her right leg below the knee in a shocking manner, so that the bones protruded and otherwise mutilating her person. Dr. BURRUS was called, who rendered her what assistance he thought necessary. Next morning Dr. B. again visited his patient and finding her failing, Dr. THORN was called in consultation. The Doctors rendered the woman every possible attention, still she continued to fail and at 6 o'clock Thursday she died.
