2:2 - MARRIED - In So. Shaftsbury, Vermont, the 19th Ult by the Rev. William BELL, Col. Dwight CORKINS to Miss Lydia BOYNTON, daughter of General BOYNTON.

"Now Lydia don't you overscold,
Or strike your husband with the broom,
For stormy women we are told
Half lose their beauty intheir bloom

"And Dwight you truly must be kind
And treat your lady quite genteely
For, maybe, she would scratch you blind
If once you got her temper riley."

Page 2:5' - SEVERE AFLICTION - Mr. Conklin TITUS of #58 Mulbury Street, bellringer of the City Hall was visited with a sad affliction between the hours of twelve on Friday night and three o'clock on Saturday morning in the loss of three of his children. The eldest was a very promising son of nearly sixteen years of age and the others, daughters of eight and five years, all of whom in less than three hours died of the typhus fever. Between the 1 of January and the period of the deaths of the above Mr. TITUS lost by death of typhus fever two other children making five in all within a month. He has had, we are informed, 21 children - only three of whom survive - an amount of mortality almost unexampled in the annals of any family. The intensity of grief that has followed these successive assaults of affliction by death - it is impossible to conceive (from New York Sun)
