Page 2:2 - The body of Eugene COLLETT, the French lad whose disappearance from home we noticed in our last, was found floating in the River near the lower ferry by the skiff ferryman, early on Friday morning last. An inquest was held but no facts relevant to the case, other than what we have published, were elicited. It is probable that when he left home, he rambled near the edge of the River and fell in.

- A young man named Patrick CARROLL, a segar maker by trade, was killed in Albany, about 10 o'clock on Sunday morning under the following circumstances. He was returning home with a Mr. TOWNSEND and his son, and when near the corner of First & Swan Streets, they were attacked by Patrick MCKIERNEN, James KEARNEY and a man unknown, and either violently beaten or pelted with stones, TOWNSEND being very badly injured. CARROLL was found dead in a vacant lot near the place. The doctors who held the post-mortem examination testified that his heart was extensively diseased, that the blow or bruise upon his person was not sufficient of itself to cause death, but that it might have hastened it. The jury therefore, rendered a verdict that the deceased came to his death from disease of the heart hastened by violence at the hands of Patrick MCKIERNEN & James KEARNEY.

- Elihu BISHOP of Salem, Washington County was fatally injured a few days since by running a hay fork in his body while sliding off a hay mow. He was about 50 years of age, a highly respected and industrious farmer, and leaves a family to mourn his sudden and untimely death.

- Elizabeth GALE an aged maiden lady of Boston, was poisoned on the 16th inst. by applying some medicine to her eye which she mistook for a wash. She died in 15 minutes.
