Page 2:5 - A remarkable romance in real life has lately occurred in Louisa County, Iowa. A man named CRALL has been reunited to his wife and family after a separation of 47 years. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, and his family then resided near Philadelphia. His wife heard that he was killed, and afterwards went west with some friends. After his discharge he returned and was told his wife and children had moved away and afterwards died. He has since been living in Jefferson County New York and only came to a knowledge of his wife's existence by her attempt to secure a land warrant on his account.
