Page 2:2 - FATAL ACCIDENT - A woman named Catherine CULHAIN, wife of Thomas CULHAIN, together with her sister, on Thursday evening last about 8 o'clock attempted to cross the Railroad tracks on Canal St. near the trestle work that crosses the creek, in advance of a train starting out from the station. Her sister managed to get across safely, but Mrs. C. was struck by the engine and badly crushed before the train could be stopped. From the effect of the injuries thus received, the woman died the next day. Coroner WITBECK summoned a jury consisting of Samuel CRAWFORD, John I. WINNE, Nicholas F. WITBECK, Philip PENNOYER, George PERRETT & Michael BALL, and proceeded to hold an inquest. The testimony elicited showed that the accident was a result of the temerity of the deceased and that no blame whatever could be attached to the engineer or those having charge of the train. A verdict in accordance with these facts was accordingly rendered.
