

JUNE 11, 1862 CONTINUED FROM PAGE 319

Page 2:3 - DROWNED - The body of a man named Michael MURTAUGH, residing in Green Island, was found by some fishermen in the Hudson River near the State Dam on Sunday evening. Coroner WITBECK was summoned, and held an inquest. From the testimony, it appeared that MURTAUGH had been missing since Wednesday evening last, at which time he left home to call upon some people on the upper part of Green Island, on business. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental drowning.

JUNE 18, 1862

Page 2:3 - BOY DROWNED - A little son of Charles DUTCHER, aged 3-1/2 years, fell into the Cohoes Company's ditch at the rear of his father's residence, a few doors above Alden & Frink's Store on Mohawk St., Cohoes on Wednesday morning last, and was drowned. Someone saw him fall, but arrived too late to render any assistance, and his body was taken by the current into the River, where it was soon after recovered. Coroner WITBECK was summoned to hold an inquest and the jury returning a verdict of accidental drowning.

Page 2:4 - ONE MAN KILLED & ANOTHER INJURED BY LIGHTNING - On Saturday 7th inst., a most terrible and heart-rending affair occurred near Gallopsville. About 3 o'clock that afternoon, two men named Ira SHUTTER, residing near East Bern, and Peter HOUGHTALING, of Reidsville, were going from Duaneburgh to Reidsville with a load. A heavy shower came up interspersed with vivid and terrible flashes of lightning, besides dreadful thunder, - both of the above persons set under one umbrella. While thus passing along, a flash of lightning descended upon the men. The electricity passed through the top of the umbrella, tearing a hole the size of an ounce ball; it passed down the staff of the umbrella splitting the wire spring and striking Mr. SHUTTER on the shoulder killing him instantly; it also struck Mr. HOUGHTALING on the leg, tearing one of his boots into fragments. He was considerably bruised but will in all probability survive his injuries. He was so severely stunned that he lay one hour insensible.

JUNE 25, 1862

Page 2:3 - SUDDEN DEATH - Last Thursday Mr. Matthais H. TEN EYCK of Albany, soap and tallow chandler, while engaged in handling fat, something on his arm became very itchy. He said it was a spider bite. He rubbed it until it was raw, and by so doing infused poison in to it from the fat. His arm and body immediately began to swell until Saturday night when he died.