Three Hundred and Fifty-Ninth Infantry, National Army

FOREWORD

Prepared by Request by the Chaplain of the 359th.

TEXAS, as her history gloriously shows, is a state where liberty has always been dear to the heart of every man. At the cost of the blood of her immortal pioneers, she shook off the tyrannous hold of her Mexican oppressors, and from the day of their independence to this hour, she has emblazoned the word freedom in bold letters across her prairies. When on that memorable occasion, April 6, 1917, the President of this Republic declared that no longer could the United States with honor and dignity and safety brook the dictates and bold threats of a foreign monarch, his words found a sincere response in the breast of every Texan. The pages of this album will show forth, better than mere words possibly can, how this response was expressed by the service of American manhood, the portraits of a few members of which—those enrolled in the Three-fifty-ninth Regiment, National Army—are displayed herein. It is true that these are not the portraits of volunteers, but they represent the youth of a part of the state of Texas, who, when their country, through the "Selective Service Law" called upon them, cheerfully and gladly left their homes, their trades, their professions and enrolled themselves in the great National Army called into existence for the defense of America.

The comparative ease, considering its magnitude, with which the National Army was raised, reflected the willingness on the part of the American youth "to do their bit" for their country in her hour of need. And nowhere was this willingness better displayed than by the men who now form the Ninetieth Division of that army. The One Hundred and Eightieth Brigade of this Division, which embraces the Three-fifty-ninth Regiment, is popularly known as the Texas Brigade, as it is composed almost entirely of Texas citizens. The Three Hundred and Fifty-ninth Regiment was recruited from the northeastern counties of the state; and it is the sons of thirty-nine of these counties who constitute the fighting personnel of our regiment. For the benefit of the friends and relatives of the men of our regiment, we give the following list, showing how the various companies of the Three-fifty-ninth are formed from the quotas of the respective counties:

Company A	{ 1. Collins County 2. Grayson County	Company H	{ 19. Hopkins County 20. Hunt County 21. Rockwall County 22. Van Zandt County
Company B	{ 3. Cooke County 4. Denton County 5. Parker County 6. Wise County	Company I	{ 23. Franklin County 24. Rains County 25. Red River County 26. Titus County 27. Wood County
Company C	{ 7. Johnson County 8. Tarrant County	Company K	{ 28. Bowie County 29. Cass County 30. Camp County 31. Marion County 32. Morris County
Company D	{ 9. Ellis County 10. Navarro County 11. Hill County	Company L	{ 33. Cherokee County 34. Rusk County 35. Smith County
Company E	{ 12. Delta County 13. Fannin County 14. Lamar County	Company M	{ 36. Gregg County 37. Harrison County 38. Panola County 39. Upshire County
Company F	{ 15. Dallas County
Company G	{ 16. Anderson County 17. Henderson County 18. Kaufman County

The Machine Gun Company is composed of men transferred from the various companies of the Regiment. Likewise the Supply Company.

The Headquarters Company which contains the men on prolonged detailed duty, all men working in the Regiment office, the members of the Regimental Band, the Buglers and the Signal Corps is also made up of men transferred from the other companies.

These men of the above mentioned companies arrived in three separate groups. The first quota, five per cent of the men chosen under the Selective Service Law, reached Camp Travis on Sept. 5th and 6th, 1917. The next quota, forming forty per cent of the selected men, arrived on Sept. 19th and 20th. The official date for the arrival of the next twenty per cent was October 3rd, but they arrived in small groups some days after that date. They left the plow in the field, the anvil in the shops, the desks in the business office, and most cherished of all, their families in their homes, and set about the grim business of becoming worthy soldiers of America. They entered the barracks of Camp Travis and donned the khaki and during the few months of their military preparation that have elapsed, they have shown an enthusiasm and a willingness that promises most strongly for their eventual success in going "over the top," when they get "over there."

Some time previous to the arrival of the first quota of men, the work of organization of the Three-fifty-ninth had been commenced. Needless to remark, such a work of organization in an entirely new regiment, and a large regiment—larger than under the former organization—involved a great deal of detail work, planning, adjusting and readjusting. But all the difficulties were ably overcome by the officers commanding the Three-fifty-ninth. Colonel H. L. Laubach and Lt. Colonel W. A. Cavanaugh were the men upon whose shoulders fell the bulk of these responsibilities. Colonel Laubach, who previous to his entrance into the Ninetieth Division had been for some time with the Nineteenth Regular Infantry, was the first Commanding Officer of the Three-fifty-ninth Regiment. His long military experience stood him in good stead during the painstaking work of the early days of the existence of our Regiment, and from the date of his assignment to the Three-fifty-ninth, September 5th, until his transfer to other important duties on October 5th, he worked indefatigably for the successful organization of his command.

Just as indefatigable a worker for this same purpose was Lt. Colonel W. A. Cavanaugh, our present Regimental Commanding Officer. Colonel Cavanaugh was ordered to report and arrived at Camp Travis on August 25th, was assigned to the Three-fifty-ninth on September 5th, and became Commanding Officer on October 5th. That in our regimental leader we have a typical American soldier, with some of the best traditions of the American Army behind him, can be readily gleaned by a short glance at his personal military history. Colonel Cavanaugh's father is a veteran of the Civil War and Spanish-American War and was retired from service on account of receiving a wound on the memorable San Juan Hill. The Colonel has a brother in the service as well as a sister married to a soldier in the service. In the battle of San Juan Hill, the father and his two sons participated—a record that we seriously doubt can be equaled in our military annals. Colonel Cavanaugh entered the service by enlisting on August 1, 1896, in the 20th Infantry. He was appointed a Second Lieutenant in the 22nd Infantry and attached to the 20th Infantry on July 8th, 1898, receiving this commission by cablegram on San Juan Hill itself. His promotions followed during his subsequent service with the 20th, the 6th, the 15th and the 19th Infantry, during which time he served in Cuba, in the Philippines, in China and in the Vera Cruz campaign in Mexico. We need say nothing here about our Colonel's responsibilities with his newly formed regiment, about his attentive care to the wants of his men ever since he assumed command; his officers and men know that and deeply appreciate it, and we merely let his past record of services for America speak for itself.

Connected with Colonel Laubach and Lt. Colonel Cavanaugh in the laborious work of regimental organization in the first days of the Three-fifty-ninth's existence, was First Lieutenant, now Captain, Joseph W. Janicki. Coming from the Coast Artillery at Fort Mills, Corregidor, Philippine Islands, he reported at Camp Travis, August 29th, and was assigned to the regiment on September 5 as Acting Regimental Adjutant. He served in this capacity until October 24, when he was placed in command of the Headquarters Company. On the latter date, Captain George Young, then First Lieutenant, became Regimental Adjutant. He, like Colonel Cavanaugh, came to our regiment from the 19th Infantry, and is now acting in the Adjutant's office as tactful assistant to the Regimental Commander.

A large proportion of the officers of the Three-fifty-ninth are, like the men of this command, Texans by birth or by residence. Some have entered the regiment from the Regular Army, some have held commissions in the National Guard, while most of them have secured their appointments through arduous preparation at the Students' Training Camps. But this is not meant to convey the impression that their training as officers is finished; by no means. After drilling and training and instructing their men, the officers themselves attend lectures and classes. They are still students at the various military schools conducted in the cantonment. Loyal to their men and loyal to their Colonel, they one and all are conscientiously striving to perfect themselves and their commands to fulfill their obligation of patriotism toward America in the conflict across the seas.

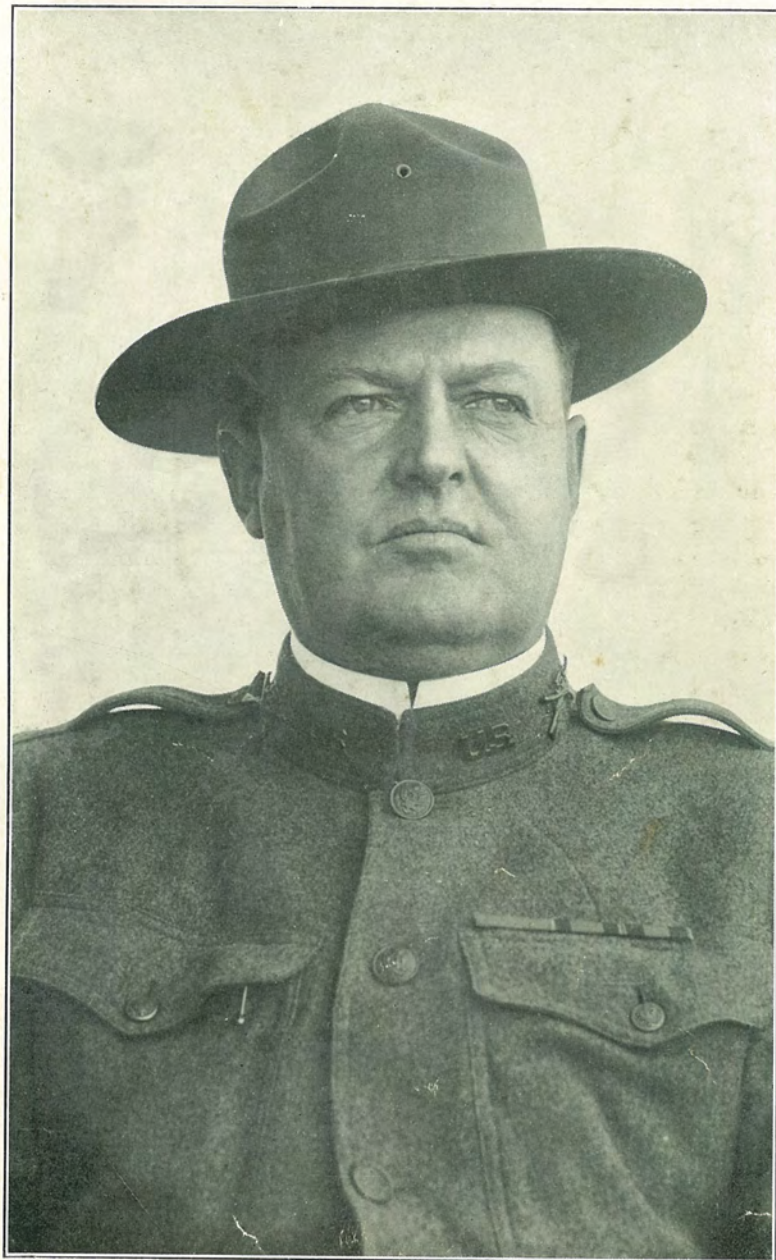

With a modest feeling of pride, we wish to call the attention of our friends to the regimental crest and coat-of-arms on the cover of this volume, designed by one of the officers of the regiment. The disc, on which is the United States coat-of-arms, is encircled by the official name of our regiment, "The Three-fifty-ninth Infantry, National Army." Above and to the sides hang the six flags, which at one time or another proudly floated over Texas and which indicate the various phases of history through which Texas has passed. The Spanish flag brought by the Conquistadores to Texas in the early days, and which waved over the state in the eighteenth century; the Fleur-de-lis of France, which the intrepid La Salle planted on the soil of this state when he claimed it for his king; the flag of the Mexican Republic after it had revolted against Spain; the flag of the Lone Star when Texas was for nearly ten years a free and independent republic; the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy during the Civil War; and the most glorious flag of all, the Stars and Stripes of America. Above the disc is seen the head of the Texas steer, the animal which has made Texas famous nationally and internationally, and on his forehead blazes a single star, the Lone Star of Texas. Beneath this crest and around the words, Three-fifty-ninth Infantry, Texas Brigade, is a wreath of blue bonnets, the official flower of the State of Texas.

For our motto on the scroll directly beneath the crest, "Preparedness, Patriotism and Protection," any words of elucidation would be superfluous. No Greek or Latin phrase of classic rhythm could more vividly announce the principles for which we are contending in this war against Germany.

No boastful word has been stated in these lines of what the Three-fifty-ninth will do when it reaches the battle fields. We believe with the ancient philosopher that no man should be called great until his life's work is finished. Encomiums of praise for our regiment will be accepted only when the struggle against Prussian autocracy has been victoriously concluded. This volume is intended to display in a modest way, the portraits of the officers and men of the Three-fifty-ninth Infantry, who are solidly determined to give the very best they have for the principles enunciated in our motto, "Preparedness, Patriotism and Protection," of America. And realizing what America has been to our forefathers, what it is to us, and what it will and must be to our children and children's children, we can one and all repeat with fervor the patriotic sentiment of the poetic lines:

"Great God we thank Thee for this home,
This beauteous birth-land of the free,
Where strangers from afar may come,
To breathe the air of liberty.

"Long may her flowers untrampled spring,
Her harvests wave, her cities rise,
And yet till Time shall fold her wing,
Remain earth's loveliest paradise."
