Gen Friends Presents John Humphrey

On Saturday, September 18, 2004, Genealogy Friends presents award-winning author, John T. Humphrey. John is the current president of the Mid-Atlantic Germanic Society and vice president of the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania. Mr. Humphrey's principal genealogical publication is the fourteen-volume set of Pennsylvania Births that list more than 170,000 birth in eleven eastern Pennsylvania counties prior to 1800. He has written other books and numerous articles, lectures widely on German and colonial research, and has appeared on national television and public radio. He was the former director of the National Genealogical Society Learning Center. Currently Mr. Humphrey is working on genealogical records created during World War II of interest to researchers in Germany and the United States. Topics will be:

Reconstructing Families on the Colonial Frontier - Records kept during the colonial period can be difficult to find or when they do exist, they are often incomplete causing serious obstacles to research. This lecture explores strategies to get around these obstacles by creatively using data found in the records that do exist.

Researching Pennsylvania Ancestors - If your ancestors are from the keystone state you need to know about Pennsylvania’s deeds, warrants, patents, probate and vital records.

Researching German Ancestors: “The Agony and the Ecstasy” - This two hour introduction to German research explores obstacles like language and custom, and it looks at a variety of records kept by Germans both in the U.S. and Germany that will open the way to a rich source of research material.

Cost: Non-members before Sept 1, $32, after Sept 1st, $37 and Members $25 Box Lunches from Jason’s Deli will be available for purchase. They include a sandwich (turkey, ham, or roast beef), chips, a cookie, and a pickle. For more information contact Genealogy Friends at genfriends@comcast.net. Watch our web site for more information.

PERSI

PERSI—the Periodical Source Index was created by the Allen County Public Library in Indiana. It is a subject index of articles in genealogy and history periodicals that contains over 1.7 million entries. The names contained in an article are not included in the index, therefore, search for types of records in locations where you ancestors resided. Copies of the articles can be obtained from the Allen County Public Library. PERSI is now available on Heritage Quest. Contact the Reference Staff at the library to learn how to access Heritage Quest from your home.
Locating Land Records

Land records can help solve research problems, however they are not as easy to use as some other record groups.

- At a minimum finding a land record will place your ancestor at a point in time in a specific place.
- Since property sales include a dower release, if your ancestor is married and his wife is living, the wife’s name should be included.
- Property sales between relatives often mention the relationship of the parties, the deed may be the only source that links a father and son.
- By plotting the location of the land on a map, you will be able to see the relationship of property owned by people of the same surname, close proximity may be an indication of a relationship.
- If you can locate the land on a USGS Map, you can also determine which schools and churches were near by, which might lead you to other record sources.
- Most deeds include the residence of the buyer and seller, which may provide the location your ancestor came from or moved to, thus proving that the person by that name in the next county really is your ancestor.
- Not all deeds contain all these things but they are possibilities.

The first transaction relating to a piece of property normally occurs between a government and an individual. These records will most likely be located at an archives, federal, state or in another country. Original title passed to an individual in a number of ways—grants, homesteading, purchase, military bounty land, etc.

Thirty of the fifty United States contain public lands. The federal government had an abundance of land and it was disposed of to encourage military service, encourage settlement in specific areas, and to raise money. The records of homestead, cash and credit sales are indexed on the Bureau of Land Management web site, <http://www.glorecords.blm.gov>. The final step in the process of obtaining land from the Federal Government is issuing the patent. You can search the land patent records by state on the web site. You can also search by state, county, and land description to find out who acquired land near your ancestor. Using the land office, legal description, and file number you can order the cash entry, homestead or bounty land file from the National Archives. Refer to their web site for instructions, <http://www.archives.gov/research_room/obtain_copies/reproductions_overview.html>.

When land passes from one individual to another, the transaction is normally recorded in the county where the land is located. However, it might be recorded in the county where one of the parties, buyer or seller, resided. In some Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont, the deeds are recorded at the town instead of the county. Alaska has no counties, therefore, land transactions are recorded in one of four judicial districts. If a city is independent (St. Louis, Baltimore, etc.) and are not part of the county, the deeds will be recorded in the city. Remember that boundaries change over time, a piece of land now located in Monroe County, Illinois might have been part of St. Clair county at an earlier time period, therefore, the deed would be in the St. Clair county courthouse. Refer to the Red Book or the Handy Book for information on changes in county boundaries.

To locate a deed, you need to know the name of the buyer and/or seller. Most locations have indexes by both buyer and seller. Buyer indexes can be called grantee indexes or indirect indexes. Seller indexes can be called grantor or direct indexes. Most locations index by the first letter of the last name for a period of time. Pay attention to entries that include et al after the name of the buyer or seller. This indicates there are multiple parties involved. This often appears when heirs are selling land they inherited. Since indexes differ, it is a good idea to consult a clerk to determine how they are organized. The index should include the book and page number where the deed is located. A large number of land records have been microfilmed and are available through the Family History Library. To determine if the location you need is available, search the FHL catalog by the name of the location where the records should be and look for Land and Property records.

It is important to read the entire deed. Most deeds contain boilerplate language that is the same in all transactions. This language can provide clues to the type of deed—warranty, quit claim, etc. In addition to the names of both the buyer and seller, the legal description of the property, and the consideration (amount paid for the purchase), deeds can contain the residence of the buyer and seller, relationships of the parties, names of witnesses, names of neighbors, and will indicate if your ancestor could sign his/her name. If the signature is an X, they probably could not sign their name. If the consideration is $1.00 this usually means there is a mortgage or that the buyer and seller are related. If the seller is married there should be a dower release included in the deed book. This normally contains the name of the wife.

Another good practice is to look at the deeds surrounding those of your ancestors. Some things may be recorded in the deed books, but may not be included in the index. By doing this, I found the deed for the purchase of a canal boat on the

Genealogical Codicil to My Last Will and Testament

To my spouse, children, guardian, administrator and/or executor:

Upon my demise it is requested that you DO NOT dispose of any or all of my genealogical records, both those prepared personally by me and those records prepared by others which may be in my possession, including but not limited to books, files, notebooks or computer programs for a period of two years. During this time period, please attempt to identify one or more persons who would be willing to take custody of the said materials and the responsibility of maintaining and continuing the family histories. [If you know whom within your family or friends are likely candidates to accept these materials, please add the following at this point: "I suggest that the persons contacted regarding the assumption of the custody of these items include but not be limited to" and then list the names of those individuals at this point, with their addresses and telephone numbers if known]

In the event you do not find anyone to accept these materials, please contact the various genealogical organizations that I have been a member of and determine if they will accept some parts or all of my genealogical materials. [List of organizations, addresses and phone numbers at bottom; include local chapters, with their addresses, phone numbers and contact persons if available as well as state/national contact information and addresses]

The Year 1904

The year is 1904, one hundred years ago... what a difference a century makes.
- The average life expectancy in the US was 47.
- Only 14% of the homes in the US had a bathtub.
- Only 8% of the homes had a telephone.
- There were only 8,000 CARS in the US and only 144 miles of paved roads.
- The tallest structure in the world was the Eiffel Tower.
- The average US worker made between $200-$400/year.
- A competent accountant could expect to earn $2000/year, a dentist $2,500/year, a veterinarian between $1,500-$4,000/year, and a mechanical engineer $5,000/year.
- More than 95% of all births in the US took place at home.
- 90% of all US physicians had no college education. Instead, they attended medical schools, many of which were condemned in the press and by the government as "substandard."

C&O Canal in Cumberland, MD. My ancestor sold his house and purchased the boat on the same day. The sale of the house was in the grantor index however, the purchase of the boat was not in the grantee index. If your ancestor lived a great distance from the county seat, they may have collected a number of transactions and gone to town and had them all recorded on one day. Also, relatives may have taken their deeds in to be recorded together, therefore, they would be grouped together in the deed book. Recording deeds in a timely manner was not always a high priority with our ancestors. Also, if land passed from one family member to another they may not have recorded the transaction, due to the fee, until the land passed out of the family.

Plotting the land on a map can provide a visual depiction of the land owned by your ancestors. This is especially helpful if you have multiple ancestors in one location. The United States Genealogical Survey (USGS) 7.5 Minute maps include the boundaries of sections, townships and ranges. One inch represents 2,000 feet and they contain churches, cemeteries, roads, and waterways. You can order the maps on the USGS web site http://mapping.usgs.gov/esic/prices/maps.html. There is also a growing collection of 7.5 Minute maps available online—http://www.lsi.blm.gov/lsis2/map.htm. Land records can provide valuable information about our ancestors and are definitely worth the effort to locate, read and analyze carefully.
