EARLY SETTLERS AND SETTLEMENTS.

In tracing the history of the town of Oakland we find that our task lies in tracing out the story of the settlement and development of the whole section along the banks of the Kennebec River, above Cushnoc, or Augusta as it was later called. When the white man first gained a knowledge of the territory of this region about the junction of the Messalonskee and the Kennebec the forest resounded only to the stealthy step of the redman, and the waters reflected only the rude, rough features of the child of nature as he bended over them to cast the rude implements of fishing or seek a draught to quench his thirst. For a long term of years after the first of the white men learned of the territory hereabout no progress or even attempts to settle were made. The strife that was waged between the white men and the Indians made the whole of this region the secure home for the latter for a long time. But with the advent of the trader came some small development of opportunity to settle. From the 31st day of May, 1607, when the Popham expedition sailed from England to the mouth of the Kennebec and made preparations to establish there a colony, the fortunes of the Indian seem to have been doomed. There were many long periods of doubt as to whether the territory of this region was to belong to France or England; but there never was a time when there was any doubt that the Indian sooner or later must leave the scenes of his former domain. The French adopted methods which seem to have been well calculated to hold for a time the confidence and friendship of the redman, but their purpose was identical with that of the English and aimed at the control of the territory of the larger part of the whole North American Continent. While the French were aiming at the subjugation of the Indian by diplomacy and apparent friendship, the English were carrying on their old and well known plan of subjugation by the might of the sword. This policy entrusted to the adventurers whom they sent to establish their dominion, coupled with the deceit which was frequently practiced upon the Indian served only to make the English the more hated and the French the more trusted.

This condition led to strife which was destructive of life and property as well as of the advance of civilization. So long as the strife of arms continued little or nothing was done for the betterment of the region of the Kennebec. When the fort at Winslow, Fort Halifax, was built in 1754 there was a certain amount of protection for the settlers offered, and from this time there was something done toward settlement. But previous to this time the history of the section is a story of strife between the Indians and the English with the complications made by the French in addition. Briefly the events of most importance following the establishment of a colony at the mouth of the Kennebec by Popham in 1607, as above stated, are the following.

The grant of territory known as the Plymouth or Kennebec Grant was made by the Plymouth Council on January 13, 1629. This grant included all the territory on either side of the Kennebec river to the extent of fifteen miles from its banks, and extended from the vicinity of Topsham to the Wessarunsett river at Cornville. Following this grant there was erected a trading house "up above on ye river in ye most convenientest place for trade." This was undoubtedly at Cushnoc, or Augusta as it is now known. Not long after this, some six years, the Plymouth Council became disheartened and surrendered its charter to the King of England. Then by various acts and grants the King placed this and other territory, which included practically what is included in the present State of Maine, under the control of Sir Ferdinando Gorges. His domain was designated as the "Province of Maine." He sent his nephew, William Gorges, as Governor, and this gentleman established his capital in Saco, and opened court there on March 28, 1636. As there were no settlements yet on the Kennebec, Gorges exercised no jurisdiction, but the Pilgrim Colony made a monopoly of the trade with the Indians. But the trade with the Indians became in time so scanty that it was leased in 1649 to five parties, William Bradford, Edward Winslow, Thomas Prince, Thomas Willett and William Paddy. The consideration was a small sum and the lease was to run three years. This lease was renewed till 1661 when the patent was sold outright to Artemas Boies, Edward Tyng, Thomas Brattle and John Winslow.

One of the very first civil actions on the part of the people scattered along the Kennebec near its mouth, occurred on May 23, 1654, when sixteen men assembled in compliance with an order from the General Court of Massachusetts to one Thomas Prince to "summon the citizens on the river Kennebec that they might take an oath of allegiance and arrange a judicial code." In accordance with this order the sixteen men, mentioned above, assembled at the house of one Thomas Ashley near Merrymeeting Bay on the above date, and besides taking the oath, "promulgated the first prohibitory law in the State of Maine." It provided for penalties for the selling of liquors to the Indians.

We find that at the outbreak of King Phillip's War there were two men who had trading places at Waterville, Teconnet as it was then called. They were Messrs. Clark and Lake. In a short time the war assumed such proportions that the Maine Indians took part, and a large part of the traders about the vicinity of Arrowsic and at points further up the river were killed. This conflict and those which followed were so destructive that as late as 1749 there were only two families left on the river above Merrymeeting Bay. In 1749 nine of the heirs of the men who had bought the rights of the Plymouth Company in 1661 met in Boston and organized and became incorporated in order to obtain their rights to the lands which had been bought by their ancestors, and to devise means to open the territory to settlement. In 1753 the company petitioned Gov. Shirley of Massachusetts for the erection of a fort at Teconnet Falls. This was the beginning of the opening up of the whole of the Kennebec Valley to settlement. Teconnet was regarded as the strategic point by both the English and the French and by the Indians also who saw in this new move a thing dangerous to their interests. But their protest was in vain and the fort was erected. General Winslow was in charge of the eight hundred troops who accompanied Governor Shirley on this expedition. It was he who laid out the fort and had charge of the operations about the scene of the fortification. It took but a short time for these English to build five buildings about Fort Halifax. Soon a stockade eight hundred feet in length was put up, cannon and rifles were brought up the river in scows, and a wheel road was cut through from Fort Weston at Cushnoc (Augusta). When the works were completed Governor Shirley inspected them and very highly complimented General Winslow and his men. Capt. Lithgow, who had been in command of Fort Richmond, was assigned to the command of Fort Halifax, and was given a garrison of eighty men. We are informed that there was a whale boat express established between this place and Falmouth (Portland) which made the trip in twenty hours, a rate of speed considered rapid for those times.

After the garrison was established at Fort Halifax it was soon learned that the Indians were determined to make trouble if possible. No man was safe if he ventured beyond the limits of the fortifications. Several were mortally wounded by the Indians. They continued to make trouble till the summer of 1757 when the last skirmish with them occurred. It is recorded that Capt. Lithgow had noticed for a few days that there were rafts drifting down the river, and concluded that the Indians had used them to cross at some point above and come down in attack on the settlement. He sent a party of ten men down the river to give warning of the impending danger. As these men were returning they were fired upon some ten miles below the fort and two of the party were wounded. They returned the fire and continued the fight with such gallantry that the Indians fled after one had fallen, shot dead, and another wounded. The Indians carried away these two on their backs to prevent their being taken prisoners. The above skirmish occurred on May 18, 1757, and was the final shot of the redman, as a tribe, in this region.

The purpose of the Fort was now realized. It was the key to the region of the Kennebec, and had unlocked the valley to the axe of the settler. It is of interest to note that the garrison was much reduced after a short time, and that the Fort was dismantled after the close of the French and Indian War in 1763. When Arnold passed up the Kennebec on his expedition to Quebec the large house within the fort was used as a hotel. It was called "Fort House." This building was used afterward as a dwelling house, meeting house, town house and later as a dancing hall and finally as a home for the poor. A Mr. Thomas tore the building down in 1797 and used some of its timbers in the construction of the Halifax House. Capt. Lithgow remained at the fort for some time. He was engaged in trade at this point. He was appointed Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for Lincoln County as early as 1760. In 1772 he removed to Georgetown where he died in 1798 at the age of eighty-three.

Abbott says in his history of Maine, "Winslow was incorporated this year (1771) including the present town of Waterville. Here was the famous Teconnet of the Indians; and it was on this point, on the neck of land formed by the union of the Sebastcook and the Kennebec, that Fort Halifax was reared. As early as 1754, eleven families built their cabins at this frontier fort in the wilderness." The Rev. E. C. Whittemore, in writing on this point, says, "Abbott states that eleven families settled in Winslow in 1754, but, if so, they have left neither trace nor name." We are inclined to believe that there were no permanent settlements on the banks of the Kennebec at this point till somewhat after this date.

In 1766 the Plymouth Company issued a grant of land to several parties on several conditions. The most important was that the grantees must have fifty settlers on the land within four years time. There were several other conditions imposed in the case of the settlers themselves, providing for improvements upon the land they were to take up. At the expiration of the time it was found that there were established on the territory the required number of settlers. This was the first earnest endeavor to settle the territory about Ticonic Falls. The history of the settlement learn from existing records that the excellent water power on the Messalonskee early attracted some of the settlers to this portion of the town. But we are told that tradition has it that the first comers were among a party of hunters from Canada. In the party were some by the name of Emmerson, who were so favorably impressed with the place that they stayed here settling near the outlet of the lake.

In 1791 we find there were living in that part of Winslow which is now Oakland the following: Ensign Thomas Bates, David Crowell, Asa Emmerson, the surveyor and mill builder; Solomon Hallett, Elisha Hallett, Elijah Smith, Jonathan Combs and John Farrin.

According to a survey made by John Crosby in 1802, there were living in the present territory of Oakland and on lots as indicated in the following list: Samuel and Moody Crowell, Lot No. 4; Elisha Hallett, 2; Solomon Heald, 3; Baxter Crowell, 4; Joshua Morey, 5; Samuel Morey, 6; Jabez Hall, 7; Peltiah Penney, 11; Samuel Avery, 12; Aaron Fall, 13; Nehemiah Penney, 14; John Penney, 15; William Ellis, 16; Joel Richardson, 17; Henry Kenney, also on same lot; Nathaniel Blake, 18; Daniel Branch, 19; Perly Merrill, 20; Robert Damon, 22; Isaac Page, 23; Ezekiel Crowell, 24; Henry and Otis Richardson, 25; Joel Richardson, 26; Henry Richardson, 27.

In addition to the names of the above we are able to give the names of the following who were here upwards of ninety years ago; Daniel Emmerson, Jonathan Combs, Cyrus Wheeler, Baxter and Hiram Crowell, Watson and Elisha Hallett, Elijah and George Gleason; Benjamin, Phillip and Joseph Hersom; Asa, Peter and John Libby; Samuel, Benjamin and James Witham, Seth and Isaac Gage; Isaiah, Ephraim and Eben Holmes, Benjamin Corson, Reuben Hersey, Samuel Wade, Leonard and John Cornforth, Asa and William Lewis, Thomas Cook, William Wyman, Thomas McFarlane, Benjamin Soule, Dexter and Sanford Pullen, Eben Moore, James and Reuben Shores, Reuben Ricker, Michael Ellis, William Marston, Chas. Dingley, and S. Penney and Seth Getchell, two soldiers of the Revolution.

ORGANIZATION.

We have traced the different circumstances of the settlement of the territory of the present town of Oakland and have shown as well as the records will allow, the nature of the struggle of the white man to build, from the forest, the community of civilization. It will next be our task to make mention of the efforts of these early comers to mould this backwoods settlement into a municipality with codes of law and officials to preserve the observance of the same; and later to note the changes made from time to time in the civil organization for the control and convenience of the territory of the region round about.

We learn that the people who braved the dangers of the forest to locate here in the early years following the building of Fort Halifax, styled the settlement Kingfield. We have no records to state that there was any organized plantation in this territory which was known by this name. By this name, till 1771, the whole of the territory of Waterville, Winslow, and Oakland was known. In that year the town of Winslow was organized, and the name of Kingfield was no longer connected with this region. The date of the incorporation was April 26th of the above year. The town of Winslow thus had the honor of being the fourth town organized within the limits of the County of Kennebec. The town was named for General John Winslow whose name appeared in the previous chapter. The first town meeting was held on May 23d of the same year, and the place of meeting was Fort Halifax. The warrant directed the opening hour to be eight o'clock, A. M. Lieut. Timothy Heald was chosen moderator; Ezekiel Pattee, town clerk and treasurer; Ezekiel Pattee, Timothy Heald, and John Tozer, selectmen; Robert Crosby, John Peter Cool and Nathaniel Carter, wardens; Francis Dudley, Joel Crosby and John Ayer, surveyors of highways; and Jonas Crosby, fence viewer. This warrant was dated "within the County of Lincoln" and called in "His Majesty's Name."

From 1771 down to the beginning of the 19th century the town of Winslow gradually became prosperous, slowly but surely improved the natural advantages which it possessed, and became one of the leading towns on the river. It performed its part in civil and military matters with promptitude and patriotism. The western part, in which we are most interested, was all this time growing to a more and more commanding and influential standing in the town. Religious services were being held in this section, and steps were being taken which were later to lead to the building of a town at this point.

Toward the close of the 18th century the people of this section were forced to pass judgement upon several questions of separation. The matter of separation of the District of Maine from the State of Massachusetts had been voted on favorably from time to time. The question of the erection of a new county, with the territory of the county of Lincoln, arose about this time, and the division took place February 20, 1799. Another division which was of more vital importance to the people of this section was the proposed division of the town of Winslow. This matter, after some agitation, was passed upon by the town voting on December 28, 1801 "To petition the General Court to set off that part of the town which lieth on the westerly side of the Kennebec river and to incorporate it into a separate town."

A committee of five was appointed to prepare the petition in due form. This committee was as follows: Rueben Kidder, Thomas Rice, Josiah Hayden, Nehemiah G. Parker and Asa Soule. The petition which they prepared and which was granted by the General Court of Massachusetts, and which sets forth the reasons for the division then proposed is in the following form:

PETITION FOR DIVISIONS.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in General Court Assembled:

The Petition of the Subscribers, Inhabitants of the town of Winslow, in the County of Kennebeck, being a committee chosen by said Town in Town meeting assembled, humbly Report to your Honours that it is the wish of Inhabitants of said Town that the territory lying on the Westerly side of said River, in the said Town as it is now bounded, should be set off from said Town by the name of Waterville. Your Petitioners would in behalf of said Town, beg leave to offer to your Honours the following reasons:

That the value of the property now owned in said Town is nearly equally divided on each side of said river;

That the Town and religious meetings in said town are held alternately in the meeting houses now erected on each side of said River, and that in several parts of the years it is very difficult and almost impossible to cross said River to attend said meetings;

That in the spring season, at the annual meetings held in said Town, the Inhabitants thereof living on the opposite side from where the said meeting is to be held, are frequently prevented by the particular situation of said River from crossing the same to attend said meeting;

That said River near by divides said Town of Winslow in equal halves;

Wherefore your Petitioners in behalf of said Town humbly pray that said territory may be set off and as in duty bound will ever pray.

(Signed) ASA SOULE,

THOMAS RICE,

NEHEMIAH A. PARKER,

JOSIAH HAYDEN,

REUBEN KIDDER,

Com. of Town of Winslow.

That the now Town of Winslow shall be divided through the middle of the River Kennebeck as the River usually runs across the width of said Town;

That that part of the said Town which lay on the Eastern side of the Kennebeck shall retain the name of Winslow and the part which lay on the Western side be erected into a town by the name of Waterville;

That all debts, except such as concern meeting houses, that shall be due from the Town when divided, or Damages the Town shall be liable to, shall be apportioned and paid by each Town according to the present valuation;

That Josiah Hayden, Esq., being the only selectman of the present Town of Winslow residing on the east side of the Kennebeck River, shall, after a division, have power to call the first meeting without consulting his colleagues.

The above are articles agreed on by us in a Division of the now Town of Winslow, in behalf of said Town.

(Signed), JOSIAH HAYDEN,
REUBEN KIDDER,
ASA SOULE,
NEHEMIAH A. PARKER,
THOMAS RICE,

Committee.

On June 23, 1802, the above petition was granted by the General Court passing an act incorporating the town of Waterville.

The warrant for the first town meeting was issued by Asa Reddington, justice of the peace, and was directed to Moses Appleton, a physician. It called for the meeting to be held "in the public meeting house in Ticonic village on Monday, July 26, 1802, for the purpose of electing officers for said town." Elnathan Sherwin was elected moderator. Elnathan Sherwin, Asa Soule, and Ebenezer Bacon were elected selectmen; Abijah Smith was elected town clerk; and David Pattee was chosen treasurer.

The second town meeting was held on August 9, 1802, at West Waterville, (Oakland,) meeting-house. This, we are told, is the first time a town meeting was held within the limits of the present town of Oakland.

On February 10, 1815, a strip of land on the western boundry of the present town of Oakland was annexed to the town of Waterville. The transfer was effected as follows: "An act to annex Benjamin Corson and others to the town of Waterville. Approved February 10, 1815.—Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts that Benjamin Corson, Robert Hussey, Jonathan Nelson, Samuel Wade, Henry Richardson, 3d, Ebenezer Holmes, Thomas Gleason, Thomas McGrath, Spencer Taylor, Alvin Taylor, Abner Young, and Asa Young, with their families and estates be and hereby are set off from the town of Dearborn and annexed to the town of Waterville."

For seventy-one years the town of Waterville with its ever changing interests and its ever increasing prosperity continued to manage its municipal affairs with that fair amount of unity and concord which marks the government of other municipalities. But the year 1873 brings about a separation of the town, and the the erection of a new town by the name of West Waterville.

The agitation which finally resulted in the division was officially begun by Mr. A. P. Benjamin, chairman of the board of selectmen of the town of Waterville, in the circulation of a petition for division. Three hundred and fifty signers were obtained. A counter petition was circulated. A town meeting was held in Waterville on January 28, 1873, and the matter was voted on with the following result: 227 for division; 130 against. On February 4th, another meeting was held, this time in West Waterville, and a vote of 393 was cast against division, those who favored it taking no part in the meeting.

The matter went next to the legislative committee, where there were found to be five opposed to division and four in favor. The minority vigorously urged the distance between the villages, their separate corporate capacity, differing business interests, opposition of each to improvements in the other, the struggle over the free bridge with loss to the town of $8,000, etc. The bill was passed by both branches in spite of the majority report and was approved by Governor Robie on February 26, 1873.

INDIAN HISTORY ALONG THE KENNEBEC.

The story of the Indian in the region of the Kennebec is one full of interest to all citizens of the State of Maine. It is not expected that we shall be able in this short account to mention all the details of the stirring events of the time which elapsed between the date when Indian history in this region begins and ends. Our purpose is to state briefly the story of the leading events of that stirring period.

The date to be selected as the starting point is hard to determine. The Indian tribes east of the Connecticut river were known by the name of Abenquois. But this name came in time to be restricted largely to those Indians who lived along the Kennebec from Merrymeeting Bay to Moosehead Lake. The name has come to have the spelling, Abenakis. The Indians were well disposed toward the whites and made no attempts to create trouble till after the Plymouth Colonists had carried out their methods of kidnapping and pillaging. As was natural their faith and good will was transformed into suspicion and hatred. From this grew trouble, which at times was very disastrous.

The first glimpse of the redman of this valley is obtained in the accounts of Captain Gilbert. These are very meagre but give something of a picture of Sebenoa and his tribe as they wandered through the forest unrestricted and fearless. The next recorded arrival of white men among the Indians is that of Edward Winslow and others of the Plymouth Colony in the fall of 1625. Three years later a trading post is established at Cushnoc (Augusta), and the white man comes more in contact with the child of nature. For thirty-four years this post was continued as the trading base with the Indians. But during this time, sorry to relate, the English did nothing for the Indians in the way of educational or religious training. It remained for the French to supply this much needed assistance to the redman. We learn that in 1643 an Indian who had become a Christian under the labors of the French missionaries at Sillery or Quebec, came down the Kennebec as far as Cushnoc and told the Indians there of the majesty and beauty of the new faith. Through this agency there was considerable intercourse between the Abenakis and the Indians of the Northwest. A few years after a delegation from the Abenakis appeared at Sillery to beg that a missionary be sent to them on the Kennebec. The result of this appeal was the appointment of the renowned Father Gabriel Druillette who started on this mission in 1646. He established a successful mission at a point about three miles north of Augusta. Here he became greatly beneficial to the Indians. He was most eager to participate in all their pursuits, sharing the experiences of the tribe in its winter's hunting in the region of Moosehead Lake. He went back to Sillery in 1647 and did not return till 1650 though the tribe sent a delegation each year requesting his return to them. In 1650 he came back and renewed his labor among them. This time he came as an envoy as well as a missionary, and after meeting his old friends and companions at the mission he set out for Boston where he met in the capacity of envoy from the Abenakis Indians, the chief officers of the city and state.

He was the first Jesuit to enter the streets of Boston. He also met the leading officials of the Plymouth Colony, and in all quarters was assured of the good will of the people in behalf of the Abenakis Indians, in this move for an alliance to protect them from the Iroquois who were very troublesome. But though Father Druillette returned to the Kennebec in a very hopeful frame of mind, his efforts were proven of no value as the people of Massachusetts could not be interested in the proposed alliance to such an extent as would be necessary to carry it to a successful ending. The result was that the Abenakis were left to depend upon their own resources.

Father Druillette returned to the Kennebec in 1651 after a journey of fearful hardship from a long wandering in the forests in the region of the St. John river, occasioned by having lost all trace of the course he was to follow. He finally reached the settlement at Norridgewock and was welcomed by his simple but sincere followers as an angel from heaven. He spent some few weeks attending to the needs of his mission, and then made another trip to Boston earnestly beseeching the people of Massaachusetts to join with the Abenakis in defending the region from the onslaughts of the Iroquois, but to no avail. Father Druillette returned once more to his valley mission and passed a long dreary winter in performing his duties to his forest friends. At the beginning of March, 1652, he started for Quebec. This trip was to be more fateful than the one preceding it. Some of his party died of starvation. Father Druillette was without food six days following the fasting season of Lent. They had even to resort to the boiling of their moccasins, and at last to the boiling of Father Druillette's gown—Camisole---which was made of moose skin. All but starved and thoroughly exhausted they reached Quebec. This was the last of Father Druillette's experience with the Abenakis. Though his work had not preserved them politically, he had raised their standards and brought them to a higher plane of living for which they continued to love him and cherish his memory. This remarkable man was born in France in 1593, and died in Quebec in 1679, having passed nearly forty years in missionary work.

FIRST INDIAN WAR IN MAINE.

After the departure of Father Druillette, for nearly a quarter of a century the history of the Kennebec Indians is a blank. The friction between the English and the Abenakis continued to be productive of discord. The English made no effort to better the Indian. Puritanism had no attraction for him, but the religious rites of the Catholic faith with its beautiful symbols of those days in the skillful hands of an enthusiastic priest held their attention and won their faith and love. The Abenakis felt that the taking of Druillette from them was in some unknown way due to the influence of the English, and this being so it is plain to be seen that soon the relations between these parties must become strained.

The events which led to the outbreak in Maine were brought on by the Iroquois opening war upon the settlements in the Valley of the St. Lawrence. There is an old tradition that there was fought near the outlet of Moosehead Lake a terrible battle between the Iroquois and the Abenakis. There is little or no proof to support this, but it has come down through history as one of the disasters of this tribe. It is said in this connection that a whole village was massacred save an old chief who was carried to the west and later tortured to death.

With the opening of King Phillip's War came a stir among the Indians of Maine, especially in the western portion of the State. This led to an uneasiness on the part of the settlers about the mouth of the Kennebec. From this resulted a parley between the Indians of this valley and other Indians of the state, and the English, in which an agreement was made by the Indians to yield up their arms and remain peaceful. This seemed to be a settlement of the matter, and undoubtedly would have been had not Squando, a Saco chief, interposed objections to the treaty, and refused to be a party to it. This spoiled the best laid plans. The Indians were soon seen to be increasingly insolent. Trouble was imminent. War broke out. Massacres along the coast were committed in large numbers. Another parley was held with the Kennebec Indians, this time at Ticonic. The Indians demanded their arms saying they wished no part in the war then on, but were suffering from lack of food and had no means of procuring it without their guns and powder. The English refused this request. This was the "last straw" with the Indians and they joined the Androscoggins and other tribes and began pillaging up and down the valley. This lasted about three years. Then followed a treaty of peace which was welcomed by the Abenakis, who had not been in the conflict, as cruel and barbarous as the Androscoggins and others, thanks to the influence and teachings of Father Druillette. In this treaty provisions were made by the English to protect the Indians of Maine from the tribes of the west. But this was simply a temporary settlement, a kind of truce. The two races were naturally repellant.

THE SECOND INDIAN WAR.

The second war in Maine was brought on by the troubles which had been long standing and the new complications made by the outbreak of war between the English and French—King William's War—in 1688. The French used the Indians always to further their political ends, and this case was no exception. The Indians of the whole state were soon on the warpath and destruction of life and property was of daily and nightly occurrence.

In the midst of this an event of great interest to the student of Indian history in Maine occurred. It was the coming of Father Sebastian Rasle to the Kennebec valley to re-establish a mission of the Catholic church. The advent of the missionary has always been held to have been a part of the political plan of the French to hold their grasp on the Indians of this valley.

Rasle came from St. Francis through the woods of the northern part of the state to the headwaters of the Kennebec, and reached Norridgewock, where he established his mission, in 1695. Here he drew the remaining families of the tribes of this section of the state. He re-opened the religious work of Druillette and the history of his mission is the history of the Abenakis tribe from that time till it left the waters of the Kennebec.

Whatever may have been the part Rasle played in the conflict he found in progress we know not. It was probably in behalf of peace. Soon after his arrival the Kennebec Indians sued for peace, through their chief, Bomaseen, and others. Those on the Kennebec were willing to see the war close but the French allies were not and so the war again broke out. New disasters occurred. The English blamed Bomaseen and he was taken prisoner and lodged first in Fort William Henry at Pemaquid, and later at Boston. The Norridgewocks resumed the warpath. For two years the war raged. Another treaty was made in 1699. Bomaseen was released.

This was also simply a truce. When Queen Ann was crowned in 1702, she declared war against France. This was sure to produce war on the western continent, and in this State as she asserted her control of Acadia. A conference between the English and the Indians of Maine was held because of the warlike premonitions. It was to re-affirm the treaty last made, and to preserve peace. It was held at Casco — now Portland — and was attended by Bomaseen, Moxus, and Captain Sam, chiefs from Kennebec. Father Rasle was also in attendance. The treaty was signed, but could not be kept in good faith. War was soon on again and though the Abenakis did not join as a body some of their warriors are supposed to have been concerned in the conflict. The treaty of Utrecht—1713—ended the war for a time.

The fourth Indian war in Maine is particularly interesting as it was the conflict which ended with the death of Father Rasle at Norridgewock. Though it was due in a general way to the same causes as the other conflicts there were other circumstances connected. One of these was the people of the State and all New England felt that with the peace of Utrecht the end of Indian troubles had come. They were flocking to their former colonial homes. They were taking up new claims granted them by the different companies, and by the State. In some cases no doubt they took up land which no one had given them the right to take. This soon led to friction between the English and the Indians. The English were aware that many of the deeds of the lands which they had bought with a few dollars worth of whisky and tobacco of the most worthless Indians were really of no value, were the cases to be tried in a court of justice. They however claimed that these deeds given in a drunk, perhaps, and by a sagamore who had no tribe at all to represent were absolutely binding and that they must enforce them. But they did not like the Indian's method of taking his revenge for wrongs, either real or fancied, so it was concluded to call a general conference of the tribes in Maine and the officials of the State to be held at Arrowsic in the summer of 1717.

The Indians came in large numbers and also the Governor of the State and other officials. The parley opened very pleasantly but a discussion of the ownership of the land was brought on and the conference was broken up by the Indians leaving the council tent. Father Rasle was the friend and counsellor of the redmen and well did he use the means at hand. The conference was re-opened the following day but an agreement was practically forced upon the Indians in such terms as the governor was pleased to decide upon. From this time on the advance of the whites was made with confidence. The Indians watched the felling of the forests, the building of the forts, and the stampeding of their game in sullen silence. Rasle labored indefatigably to save to his people these lands. He interested the people of Canada and other tribes. Soon notice was given at Arrowsic that unless the whites retired from the lands they had usurped, war would be opened upon them. This notice when sent to Boston brought prompt action on the part of the government. Troops were ordered to the scene prepared to punish the rebels. Rasle was considered by the English to be at the bottom of all the trouble. A reward for his capture was offered. An expedition for his capture was organized and started direct for Norridgewock. It was unsuccessful, but came near being otherwise. Rasle was in hiding in the forest, but his dwelling was entered and his library and other belongings, left in his hasty flight, were burned.

This attempt was viewed by the Indians as a full and sufficient reason for war. All the other tribes felt that this outrage must be avenged, and prepared to do each its part in seeing that justice should be done. Not long after the burning of the Chapel at Norridgewock the Indians fell upon the settlements and again the woods of the Pine Tree State rang with the whoops of the savage, mingled with the death cries of their victims. The English decided upon another attempt to capture Rasle. Captain Moulton, with a picked party, ascended the river to Norridgewock, but found the village deserted. Rasle, aware that a reward was offered by the government for his head had taken himself and his followers to a safer place. This time no destruction of property was attempted. This was the third attempt to take Rasle either dead or alive, the second being only a short time before the one just mentioned.

The war continued with dreadful destruction. Men, women and children were killed at all points in Maine by the Indians. Whole settlements were wiped out in a single day or night. The whole section was terrorized. The English were now led to make another attempt to slay Rasle, whom they considered to blame for all this disaster. Captain Moulton accompanied by Captain Harmon with a goodly company of troops set out once more for the beautiful village on the banks of the Kennebec. This expedition was attempted in the summer time, as the others which had been all unsuccessful had been such largely because of the snow. The troops started in whale boats on the 19th of August, 1724, and reached Ticonic on the day following. On the 21st the troops marched toward Norridgewock. Before night the force came upon a party of three persons near where the village of South Norridgewock stands to-day. The two women were shot. The father, fleet-footed, ran swiftly through the forest to carry warning to the village above. He was overtaken, however, by the bullets of his pursurers as he attempted to cross the river at a fording place. The victim was Bomaseen of whom we have made mention before.

We are unable to state with any certainty the details of the advance upon the village. It has been handed down that the party crossed the river where the chief had fallen and marched to the high land a mile or two from the river where they could overlook the village and decide upon plans for its destruction. The forces were divided. Harmon led a company toward a place where it was fancied a camp might be as a smoke could be seen winding from the forest. Moulton advanced upon the village with the other force. Leaving two parties in ambush he took the remainder and charged upon the huts. The village was at once in a panic. No organized resistance was made. The Indians were shot down in cold blood either by the attacking party or by those in ambush. Rasle was seen issuing forth from a cabin in his priestly garments and was instantly riddled with bullets. He fell at the foot of the cross he had erected with his own hands. He was surrounded by his faithful neophytes, seven of whom fell by his side. Thirty Indians were dead and half as many more were hobbling into the woods wounded. Not one of the assailants was hurt, save one of the Mohawks who had accompanied the party.

The purpose of the expedition was accomplished. The English destroyed the village, scalped Father Rasle and the other victims and wended their way down the river. This cruel murder has since it was committed ever been remembered in history and in local traditions. The grave of Rasle is marked by a monument. He will always be remembered as a man whose only offense was devotion to the people he served, and constancy to his vows. Rasle's death ended the mission for some years. The larger number of the Indians who survived went to St. Francis. The war continued about a year after this incident, but the Abenakis had no part in the conflict after this time. Six years after Rasle's death the mission was re-established but only temporarily.

Here practically ended the Indian wars of this valley. Other minor conflicts occurred after the above events but were of little importance. One incident is recorded which will be read with surprise by any who believe that the Indian alone was capable of taking scalps. In the conflict between the English and French in 1744, large bounties were offered for Indian scalps. It is recorded that one party of several men under Captain John Getchell visited the Messalonskee in quest of Indians to scalp, but their search was in vain. They returned after visiting other places, empty handed.

MILITARY MATTERS.

The military history of the town of Oakland is a source of just pride. If one thing more than another is to be revered, and commemorated, impressed upon the minds of the rising generation, that thing is the record of names and deeds of men who faced the dangers of the battlefield for the welfare and safety of the country. Time rolls on and we are apt to forget the value of the service rendered by the soldier in war. Each succeeding generation is more forgetful of these things than its predecessor unless it is taught to revere and love the memory of the deeds of the soldier. It should be in the mind of each father and each mother to instill into the mind of the youth the significance of the inscriptions, "Killed at Gettysburg," "Wounded at Vicksburg," "Died in Libby Prison," etc. No one should lose the opportunity to impress upon the generation to which he belongs and the one which follows the responsibility which rests upon each man.

It is with pleasure that we attempt to give the names of those who have served in the armies of the United States from the town of Oakland. In compiling these facts we are greatly indebted to Mr. Geo. H. Bryant for the assistance he has very kindly rendered. The Revolutionary War quickly followed the organization of the town of Winslow, of which Oakland was a part at the first of her history, and although this portion of the town was sparsely settled there are several names of Revolutionary soldiers credited to this town. So far as we have been able to ascertain they are as follows: George Young, Elisha Hallett, Levi Crowell, Phillip Thayer, and Manoah Crowell.

The war of 1812 did not draw out the large numbers from the State of Maine as that of the Revolution and the Rebellion. This was due in large measure to the political conditions then existing. The Federalists were exceedingly bitter against the policy of the government, and as New England was strongly Federalists, the result was that this section of the country confined its efforts largely to the defense of the coast. Governor Strong, of Massachusetts, was so bitter against the war that he would under no condition make a move till the coast of Maine and Massachusetts was threatened. Oakland's representatives in this conflict were the following: John Hallett, Lucius Rankin, Solomon Hallett, Silas Richardson, Eben Hussey, Elisha James, Seth Gage, William Philbrick, and William Stevens.

The Mexican War was so brief and so removed from this part of the country that there was a small number only of men from Maine engaged. While Oakland lacked patriotism in no way we find that her only representative in the war was Daniel E. Manter, whose body rests in one of our cemeteries.

The beginning of the decade of the '60s ushered in a time when the eyes of the whole world were fixed upon the North American Continent as never before. This conflict which had been threatened for several years now suddenly broke out, and the struggle of theories was on. The outbreak of this war meant much to all parts of the world. To the South it meant as they thought a speedy vindication of their contention that slavery was not only justifiable but absolutely necessary. To the North it meant that soon slavery would be annihilated on this continent and the nation once more united and strong. In Europe the war was hailed as the death knell of the Republic, and the signal of final failure of the institution of government by the people. We look back over the forty and more years that have elapsed since the opening gun of the war was fired and are prone to minimize the meaning of that greatest of all conflicts which was to decide whether one man could in justice, under a free government, own another man. No war of modern history compares with the one which was waged in the southern states from 1861 to 1865. God forbid that the civilized world be a witness to another like it.

In this war Oakland responded in her usually prompt way to the call for sinews of war. We have compiled, with the efficient assistance of Mr. Geo. H. Bryant of this town, a list of all the Oakland men who enlisted in the war of the Rebellion. Forty-two of this number were left to slumber in southern soil. This list makes up the Roll of Honor of this town. We have thought best to give this separately from the names of the other soldiers from Oakland.

In reverent spirit let every citizen of Oakland read this:

CHURCH HISTORY.

THE FREE BAPTISTS.—METHODISTS.—UNIVERSALISTS.—
 BAPTISTS.

We find that the Freewill Baptists are the oldest religious society in the town of Oakland. This society was organized in 1832 and had as charter members the following: Deacons Levi Ricker and John Conforth, Joshua Gage, Nancy D. Soule, together with nine others. For the first year this society held its meetings in the town meeting house. At the end of this time the Union meeting house was erected, and this society continued to use this house as their meeting place. In 1859 the Universalists bought their pews and they moved their vestry across the road and soon after sold it to the Methodists. During this same year they erected their own church. The following list included the most of the preachers supported by this society: Elder Samuel Hutchins, Silas Curtis, — Whitney, George W. Bean, Joseph Burgess, Arthur Deering, — Erskine, A. H. Morrell, J. N. Rich, — Redland, E. Mason, S. McCowan, Lincoln Given, Edwin Blake, D. B. Newell, John Roberts, E. W. Churchill.

METHODISTS.

Methodism began in Oakland in 1843 with the establishment of a class here by Luther P. French. D. B. Ward was the leader of the class. Thomas Hill, a local preacher and his wife, Joseph Stevens, and Mrs. G. W. Pressey were active members. Occasional sermons were preached here between 1827 and 1843 by the following: E. Robinson, Martin Ward, P. P. Merrill, M. Wight, and Asa Heath. Occasional sermons were preached here by the following: S. Allen in 1844 and 1851; Asahel Moore, 1845; C. Munger, 1846; D. Waterhouse, 1853; C. Fuller, 1854-5; J. H. Mooers, 1867; and A. S. Ladd, 1869-70. N. C. Clifford was sent to this charge and the one at North Sidney in 1872 and remained four years. During his stay he succeeded in building a meeting house at an expense of $6,000, of which sum R. B. Dunn furnished $1,600. The following four years saw but little done by this society, but on the coming of Rev. M. E. King in 1880 a revival of church spirit was noticed. Some needed improvements were made. Mr. King remained two years. He was followed by Rev. C. Munger, who continued to make needed improvements. In 1885-6 Rev. E. C. Springer was the pastor; H. Chase in 1887-8, and from 1888 to 1892 Rev. A. Hamilton. Rev. C. A. Laughton, Rev. Mr. Welch, Rev. Cyrus Purington, and Rev. J. B. Lapham have been in charge of this church since 1892.

UNIVERSALISTS.

While the active life of the Universalist Society begins here in 1833, this faith was represented to a considerable degree as far back as 1802. The first sermon of this faith was preached here on the above date by the Rev. Thomas Barnes, the founder of Universalism in the Pine Tree State.

In 1810 the twelfth annual meeting of the Eastern Universalist Association was held here. In 1813 it was again held here. Barzilla Streeter, W. A. Drew, William Farwell, and S. Cobb continued to hold frequent meetings at this point and the believers in this faith constantly increased. The Union meeting house was built in 1833 as has been mentioned elsewhere. In this enterprise the Universalists were the leading society. The church was dedicated in 1834. Joseph Warner, Thomas Cook and Hiram and Elisha Hallett were prominent members of the church at this stage of its existence. The Crowells, Kimballs, Conforths and Mathews were also leading members. R. W. Byram was the first regular pastor and he was installed here in 1839. The first Sunday school superintendent was Alfred Winslow. Rev. Giles Bailey followed Mr. Byram in 1841, and was followed by J. P. Weston, Ira Washburn, and in 1845 by Nathaniel Gunnison, in 1846 by J. H. Henry, in 1847 by J. C. Pattee, and in 1852 by Amos Hutchinson.

During the year 1853 the church organization was perfected and the membership was placed at forty-eight. In 1859 the Universalists bought the pew owners' rights in the Union meeting house, and have since laid out about $3,000 in improvements. The pastor during the civil war period was W. A. P. Dillingham. He was followed by Zenas Thompson who was pastor for three years. Rev. Anson Titus was the next pastor, and in addition to his pastoral duties, wrote a careful history of the society for the Gospel Banner, published in 1876. Geo. G. Hamilton was the successor of Mr. Titus and remained in charge for eight and one-half years. He was followed by T. B. Fisher. The next pastor was Edward G. Mason. His successors have been as follows: E. V. Stevens, F. F. Eddy, and H. L. Buzzell.

SECOND BAPTISTS.

The Second Baptist Church of Waterville was organized in 1844. It was started with forty-five members mostly from the First Baptist Church of Waterville. Some of those who have been most prominent in the work of this society are the following: Russell C. Benson, A. C. Bates, K. M. Blackwell, A. Lewis, Lewis Tozer, Nathan Gibbs, and Benjamin Jackson. In 1846 the society voted to build a church. This edifice was completed in 1847, and has since had several improvements. A. F. Tilton was the first pastor. He was succeeded by the following: N. M. Williams, John Butler, Allen Barrows, James D. Reid; 1853, William Tilly; 1856, W. H. Kelton; 1862, Laforest Palmer; and for the next nine years by Prof. S. K. Smith. Following Mr.

Smith come F. D. Blake, C. E. Owen, G. W. Hinckley, E. N. Bartlett, Robert Morris, M. N. Reed, and W. G. Hubbard.

SOCIETIES AND INSTITUTIONS.

The history of secret societies in this town begins with the instituting of the Messalonskee Lodge, No. 113, F. & A. M., on May 16, 1862. There were ten charter members. The first master was Chas. H. Blaisdell. Three of its members have been honored with the appointment to the office of district deputy grand master of the 12th district, each serving two years; they were William Macartney, Orestes E. Crowell, and J. Wesley Gilman. The present officers are as follows: Master, J. E. Harris; Senior Warden, Lester M. Andrews; Junior Warden, Geo. H. Foster; Treasurer, Abram Bachelder; and Secretary, Orestes E. Crowell.

In 1867 the Drummond Royal Arch Chapter was instituted. The charter was granted on May 6, 1868. The present officers are Chas. A. Ripley, High Priest; Jeremiah Tourgee, Scribe; Geo. F. Allen, King; Abram Bachelder, Treasurer; Orestes E. Crowell, Secretary.

Mt. Lebanon Council, No. 13, R. & S. M., was organized on March 21, 1877, and the charter was granted on May 2, 1877. The present officers are James H. Witherell, T. I. M.; Wm. H. Wheeler, D. M.; Lester M. Andrews, P. C. W.; Abram Bachelder Treasurer; and Albert F. Bachelder, Recorder.

The Cascade Grange, No. 92, P. of H., was organized January

2, 1875, with thirteen charter members. Soon after its organization a store was started which ran for some fifteen years. The Grange in Oakland has ever been prosperous and is one of the strong branches of this most influential organization. The first Master of the Oakland Grange was Hiram Conforth.

Amon Lodge, No. 95, I. O. O. F., was instituted November 2, 1882, and had seven charter members. This Lodge has ever flourished. The first Noble Grand was E. C. Blackwell. The present officers are C. L. Heney, Noble Grand; A. H. Lord, Secretary.

Bodwell Commandery, No. 410, U. O. G. C., was organized in 1889, and had twenty-three charter members. The first Noble Commander was C. E. Owen.

The first Good Templar organization in the town of Oakland was Crystal Fountain Lodge, No. 118, instituted in 1867.

Cascade Lodge, No. 189, was instituted in 1881, and E. M. Foster was the first Chief Templar. Jeanette Benjamin was the first Secretary. The Lodge was re-organized in 1891 as Cascade Lodge, No. 383, and prospered for a time, but was disbanded a short time ago.

Oakland Lodge, No. 21, A. O. U. W., was instituted in 1884, with eleven charter members. The first Master Workman was James Lowe. The present officers are T. M. Otis, M. W.; F. P. Farr, Foreman; and A. H. Lord, Recorder.

I. O. F., Court Messalonskee, No. 1684, was organized November 15, 1894. The present officers are A. W. Pettigrove, C. R.; H. L. Hunton, Secretary. The number of charter members was twenty-nine.

The Knights of Pythias, Nidoba Lodge, was organized in March, 1903, with forty-five charter members. The present officers are H. L. Hunton, C. C.; A. H. Lord, V. C.; J. H. Morse, K. of R. & S.; and J. E. Harris, M. of E.

Sergeant Wyman Post, No. 27, G. A. R., was mustered December 10, 1883. The first commander was J. Wesley Gilman.

On April 24, 1894, the J. Wesley Gilman Camp, No. 26, S. of V., was instituted with twenty charter members.

INSTITUTIONS.

The Oakland Savings Bank was incorporated in 1869 as the West Waterville Savings Bank. The first president was John Ayer; the first treasurer was E. P. Blaisdell. The present president is John W. Greeley, and the present treasurer is M. A. Harris. The name was changed from the West Waterville Savings Bank to the Oakland Savings Bank when the name of the town was changed in 1883, and later became known as the Cascade Savings Bank, its present name.

The Messalonskee National Bank was incorporated in 1875 and was known as the West Waterville National Bank. This bank was organized largely through the efforts of Luther D. Emmerson who was for several years president of the institution. The first president was A. P. Benjamin, and the first cashier was George H. Bryant. The present president is George W. Goulding, and the cashier is J. E. Harris.

MERCANTILE ACCOUNT.

FIRST MERCHANT.—NEAR COMBS DAM.—SOUTH END OF TOWN.

—LIST.—TRADERS AT DEPOT.

So far as we have been able to learn, Leonard Conforth was the first trader in the town of Oakland. It is stated that Israel Washburn was a clerk in this store for a time. This is of interest to all Maine people as Mr. Washburn afterwards became Governor of the State. Across the road from Mr. Conforth's, Mr. Asahel Tilson kept a store at nearly as early a date.

Near the Combs dam, Kimball & Matthews and Baxter Crowell had stores. Both these concerns had an ashery by the side of the pond. We give in the following list the names of the traders who have been located at the south end of the town: Madison Crowell, Hallett & Balcom, Mitchell & Gilman, Charles Arnold, A. J. Libby, Morrison Libby, D. F. McLure, Daniel & E. P. Blaisdell, Charles W. Folsom, A. Winslow & Co., who have been in trade for a period of upwards of forty years, Marshall Bros., W. H. Wheeler, E. T. Bailey, Geo. P. Boynton.

Some of the traders near the railroad station in Oakland have been the following: Burgess & Atwood, Hatch & Otis, B. F. Otis, O. F. Walker, Blaisdell & Hallett, Hallett & Leonard, Leonard & Mitchell, Watson V. & Arthur W. Leonard, H. E. Maines, H. J. Goulding, F. A. Kelley, Blake Brothers, Mrs. B. F. Frizzell Co., Miss M. L. James, Mrs. J. Blaisdell, A. C. Taylor, Geo. W. Hubbard, Albert Swain, Hobart Nickerson, Geo. Gould-ing, W. H. Macartney, J. B. Emmerson, Frank Sawtelle, George L. Hovey, E. M. Stacy.

MANUFACTURING ACCOUNT.

The history of the manufacturing industry in the town of Oakland begins before 1800, when one Jonathan Combs built a saw and grist mill at the outlet of Massalonskee Lake. His successor in the grist mill was Burnham Thomas, who built a new mill on the old site in 1836. This mill after being run twenty years was carried away in a freshet. It was replaced by Silas H. & Edwin Bailey in 1856 with the present grist mill. The mill has since been the property of the following in order: Joshua Bowman;

Blaisdell & Webber; 1870, Samuel Blaisdell; Dustin & Hubbard Manufacturing Co.; and E. T. Bailey.

The saw mill above referred to was operated by the builder and his two sons Jonathan and David Combs for a period of over half a century. Sanford Pullen had charge of a fulling mill built by Mr. Combs. About 1850 the Ellis Saw Company came into possession of the property and later sold it to A. B. Bates, who in turn gave way to Hubbard, Blake & Co. They made enlargements upon the property and later sold to the American Axe Co. On the other side of the stream was located the chair and settee factory, established here in 1849 by Joseph Bachelder; this enterprise was later run by Abram Bachelder, the son.

In 1836 Alfred Winslow came to Oakland and built near the Combs dam a tannery which he ran for twenty-eight years, making upper leather as a specialty. Mr. Winslow, with a partner, Mr. William Jordan, made this leather into boots, employing about twenty-five men. Mr. Winslow sold the tannery in 1864 to Alvin Atwood, who, after running it three years, sold it to Horace Parlin. A. J. Parker was the next owner, and he sold to A. J. Libby, who converted it into a shingle and grist mill. The Dustin & Hubbard Manufacturing Company came into possession of it in 1887.

The Dustin & Hubbard Manufacturing Company was organized in 1887 by Frank E., Geo. A. and W. H. Dustin, John U. and Geo. W. Hubbard, Austin Bragg, J. B. Newhall, and Geo. H. Bryant. The officers were as follows: John U. Hubbard, president; Geo. H. Bryant, treasurer; F. E. Dustin, superintendent; W. H. Greeley, secretary. This concern at once obtained control of the water power about the upper dam and built several large shops for the manufacture of a general line of machinery. This company continued business for several years and then gradually suspended operations.

The dam next below the Combs dam was built about 1850, by Daniel Lord. The first manufacturing at this point was by Lord & Graves who put up buildings and made axes and hoes for a time. Graves sold to C. H. Davis, who, with Mr. Lord, carried on the business. It was sold to Sanford Pullen, who in turn sold to John U. Hubbard and Wm. P. Blake. In 1865 the firm of Hubbard & Blake was changed to Hubbard, Blake & Co. by the addition of L. D. Emmerson and Chas. E. Folsom. This concern made axes and scythes for five years, at the end of which time Emmerson and Folsom withdrew.

The Emmerson & Stevens Manufacturing Company was formed in 1870 by L. D. Emmerson, Joseph E. Stevens, Wm. R. Pinkham, and Geo. W. Stevens. This concern has continued to do business down to the present day on a large scale, employing a large number of men and turning out a large amount of goods. It immediately after its formation bought the site at the west end of the same dam where Hubbard, Blake & Company were located.

In 1877 the Hubbard & Blake concern with the addition of Cyprian Roy, Chas. H. Blaisdell and Nathaniel Meader, re-organized under the firm name of the Hubbard & Blake Manufacturing Company. Nathaniel Meader was president and John U. Hubbard was treasurer. In 1879 a portion of their works were destroyed by fire. They soon rebuilt and continued the business till 1889, when the American Axe & Tool Co. came into possession of the plant. The business was continued under the superintendency of Nathaniel Meader. The concern sold out about two years ago, (1900).

The Dunn Edge Tool Company was established in Oakland in 1857 and has continued to prosper to the present day, and to give a large amount of employment to the people of Oakland. The concern was formed under the lead of R. B. Dunn, the well known business man and philanthropist. The concern organized with the following directors: R. B. Dunn, N. G. H. Pulsifer, and J. H. Drummond. In 1864 R. B. Dunn and John Ayer bought all interests held by other parties in the concern and continued the business under the same name. Mr. Dunn was succeeded at his death, in 1889, by his son R. W. Dunn.

When the Dunn Edge Tool Company was incorporated it gradually absorbed several other mill properties in Oakland. Among these were the following: the property first used as a scythe manufactory in 1849 by Passmore; Young & Taft, who sold to Hale; Stevens & Thayer, who in turn sold to Mr. Stevens, and he to the Tool Company. The Conforth Grist Mill, successively owned by Captain Folger, Silas H. Bailey, John Garland, and R. B. Dunn, who sold to the concern of which he was the head. The property at the old dam, at the head of the falls, whose builder is unknown. At this point Burgess & Atwood put up the frame of a shop and sold to the Hubbards, who, after making scythes for about four years, sold to the Tool Company; and the first site where scythes were made in Oakland, the site now occupied by the Cascade Woolen Mill. The concern at this point was known as Larned & Hale. These men made scythes for about three years and sold to Samuel and Eusebius Hale. The concern was later known as Hale & Stevens, and continued the business eight years when it finally fell into the hands of William Jordan and R. B. Dunn, and through them became the property of the Tool Company.

On the dam occupied by the American Axe and Tool Company Mr. Albion P. Benjamin, in 1862, erected a factory for the manufacture of grain threshers, horse powers, and general machine work. Five years later Geo. F. Allen joined him, and the firm of Benjamin & Allen has become one of the best known in this part of the country in its line. Since the retirement of Mr. Benjamin the concern has been continued by Mr. Allen.

The Cascade Woolen Mill was built in 1883 on a property leased of the Dunn Edge Tool Company. Its organizers and first board of directors were as follows: R. B. Dunn, J. B. Mayo, Seth M. Milliken, John Ayer and D. A. Campbell. R. B. Dunn was the first president, and Seth M. Milliken was the first treasurer. The property is a most valuable one and is a source of great benefit to the town.

In 1889 Columbus Marshall erected his shovel handle factory near the Maine Central Railroad Depot. This plant was recently destroyed by fire, but has been rebuilt and gives promise of doing a larger business than ever.

The history of the carriage industry in Oakland began previous to 1833, when a man named Mitchell located here. He was followed by Benjamin C. Benson in 1833, who began business in 1835. Mr. Benson bought a shop on the upper dam and continned to make wagons and open carriages till 1880. H. A. Benson built, in 1878, a wagon and repair shop near the upper dam, and in 1880 took into partnership with him Edward Wing; the concern has continued to the present day.

Among other manufacturing concerns in Oakland to-day are the following:

The Brown Woolen Company was organized in 1902, and has begun to operate its plant to a certain extent. It is expected to begin working its factory to its full capacity before many months.

The King Axe Company is a concern of recent organization which is doing a good business in manufacturing axes and hatchets.

The lumber manufactory of A. B. Bates & Co. is doing a large business.

The Portland Packing Co. is another concern which is a source of great assistance to both the farmers and laborers.

In the above sketch we have endeavored to give only in a general way the leading points in the history of manufacturing in the enterprising town of Oakland. No town of its size can boast a better reputation for thrift, enterprise and prosperity, than Oakland. It has always been one of the noted manufacturing centers of the State, and with its almost unlimited water power it seems destined to grow and prosper.

POST OFFICES AND POSTMASTERS.

FIRST POST OFFICE.—FIRST POSTMASTER.—EARLY CONDITIONS.—CHANGE OF NAME.—LIST OF POSTMASTERS.

The establishment of the post office at West Waterville—Oakland—dates to 1827. There were some few things which the hardy backwoodsman found necessary when he established himself in the pioneer home. As is mentioned elsewhere, the saw mill and the grist mill could not be dispensed with. Schools were also considered indispensable, and postal facilities were among the things which the pioneer called necessary. These facilities were at first somewhat crude. There are men still living in the town of Oakland who can recall when the town was served by a weekly mail, and considered that most excellent service. When the tri-weekly mail was ushered in the people were greatly pleased and expressed themselves satisfied for all time with the arrangement. There was a time when there were only four post office boxes in the post office here. Instead of this office being a presidential office, as it has been for many years, with its salary of $1,000 and over, those days found it one kept in a private house and the salary "ten and six" per month.

The Rural Free Delivery Service has been introduced in this section to a very considerable degree, and several routes which render good service to the section of country round about have their starting point at Oakland.

The postmasters of Oakland since 1827 are as follows: Elisha Hallett, June, 1827; Harvey Evans, May, 1832; David Combs, October, 1832; William H. Hatch, 1841; David Combs, 1848; William H. Hatch, 1849; Isaac B. Tozer, 1852; William Macartney, 1854; Charles F. Stevens, 1862; J. Wesley Gilman, February, 1877; Charles F. Stevens, October, 1877; George T. Benson, 1882.

In 1883 the name of this post office was changed from West Waterville to Oakland, and George T. Benson was continued as postmaster. His successors have been William H. Macartney, E. M. Stacy, 1892; William H. Macartney, Dwight P. Macartney, George W. Goulding.

CENSUS, 1903.

The population of the town of Oakland has been arranged herewith in families where that arrangement has been possible. In these families in addition to the names of the resident living members, the names of the non-resident members are included. It should be borne in mind that this plan does not include the names of all non-residents of Oakland as the names appear only when one or both the parents are still living in town. At the end of the Census will be found the present addresses of these non-residents when such addresses have been given to the author. The non-residents are indicated by the star (*).

Opposite the names of the population will be found the occupation. In order that we might give something of value in ascertaining facts concerning attendance upon schools, we have given all those who attend a common school or any grade below that of a High school the occupation of Pupil, indicated by the abbreviation "Pu." Opposite the names of those who are attending a High school or other institution of higher learning we have placed the abbreviation "Stu." We give in the following list some of the more common abbreviations we have used: Far.—Farmer. Car.—Carpenter. R. R. Ser.—Conductors, Station Agents, Section Hands, etc. Ho.—Housework. Lab.—Laborer.

Phy.—Physician. Clerg.—Clergyman. Law.—Lawyer. Mer.—Merchant. Mech.—Mechanic. Eng.—Engineer. Ins.—Insurance. Tr.—Teacher. Blk.—Blacksmith. Cl.—Clerk. Sur.—Surgeon. Bk.-kpr.—Book-keeper. M'kr.—Maker. W'kr.—Worker. wk.—Work.

This Census was taken expressly for this work during the months of June and July, by E. M. Campbell, Kent's Hill, Me.
