Notes for John BOOHER:

Source: Found reference that the home was built ca. 1817. However, one of the times it was a resteraunt, it was called, "The Old House Inn". I have an old xerox copy that the owner sent to me that was attached to the menus. He copied and sent it to me. The following is what was printed on the menu.

" It was in the year 1813 that John and Elizabeth Booher decided to settle in these parts and purchased 160 acres of barren wilderness 4 miles north of Dayton, Ohio. The area, at the time was inhabited mainly by Indians, mostly friendly, who often bartered goods with their white neighbors. In spite of a bitter winter and roving wolf packs, John Booher built a sturdy two-story home consisting of five rooms. The bricks used were all made on the farm. Some of the walls, 18 inches thick, still remain of the original structure. Also, the lovely, inviting front entrance and door which grace the present structure are part of the original house that John built. Through the years, nine additional rooms were added to the original house. The barn was constructed with mammoth hand-hewn beams pegged together. (Barn was destroyed in 1963)."
