THE STATE OF THE GSOC: A Birthday Celebration and Reflection Presented by Our Officers and Members

*From our President, Cindy Barber:

Happy Birthday to US! This month we will be partying with refreshments, scrapbooks, and Journals to browse after our 'State of the Society' meeting! Don't miss the party! Mike and I made a short-notice trip to the Valparaiso Library and moved 3 bins of books to the FWB library. Lauren and the staff at FWB are working to process the books into FWB and move them into the Genealogy section. David at the Valparaiso Library is keeping books related to Florida and the south, so make sure you check Valparaiso for your research, too. A check of WorldCat will let you see what is available. Happy Birthday, GSOC!

What to tell someone who asks, “Why Should I Join the GSOC?” by Jim Young

“My ancestors are not from this area, so why should I join your local genealogical society?” Many people share this “why should I join?” attitude. I know that I did for many years after the Air Force assigned me to Eglin Air Force Base and I moved from California to Fort Walton Beach. My ancestors were from Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia, Ireland, and Wales. None of them, so far as I know, had settled in Florida. So, I wondered why I should join the Genealogical Society of Okaloosa County.

Eventually, someone I had worked with at Eglin and who was a member of the GSOC invited me to attend a meeting. Little did I know how this would influence my life as a genealogist. I found a group of passionate family historians who were eager to share their experiences and knowledge. It did not matter that our ancestors were from different parts of the world. In fact, most of the members did not have northwest Florida roots. So how, you may ask, can a GSOC (or other local society) membership help us as genealogists? Here are some reasons:

You can learn from other members. Our society encourages members to share their latest breakthrough or discovery at our local meetings. This sharing is not only fun but gave me ideas on how to solve my own brick wall research problems.

You can gain an appreciation of other local societies. The exchange program for periodicals that the GSOC participates in, for example, allows you to review the publications and activities of other societies around the country.

You can develop leadership skills. As an active and involved member, you will be given opportunities to participate in the leadership of the organization. While serving on committees and board member positions, you can develop skills that are valuable in future roles.

You may not find a cousin, but someone else might. I'm always amazed at the odd connections that are made at meetings. For example, someone will casually mention they are researching the Phillips family in Alabama. Another member will answer that they are too. After comparing notes, they discover they are related six generations back into time. It happens more often than you may think! Members will also find others researching the same geographical areas and can help each other with resources, etc.

You can develop lifelong friendships. Common interests create friendships, and I have gathered many through genealogical connections. Can you imagine what it might be like if you didn't have an understanding genealogical friend to call when you make a major discovery or solve the problem you've been working on for several years?

It's useful to belong to more than one society! While you may not be able to attend meetings, the obvious benefit of joining any local society is that of receiving the society's publications. One of the primary goals of local societies is to index, abstract, or transcribe local records and publish the results in their journals and/or online. If you have roots in Butler County, AL, for example, you may want to join the Butler County Historical & Genealogical Society in order to receive notice of their publications and projects.
