

Duguid, Angus (from Dept Land Resource Management NTwebsite)

BSc (Forestry) ANU 1986. Graduate diploma in science with a thesis on the application of optimisation modelling to forest planning.

Worked in forest management planning and associated computer modelling for 3 years. During that time he completed a In 1991 he moved to Alice Springs to work for Biodiversity South and has continued to work in Central Australia for the past 14 years. His research includes the application of GIS to species distribution modelling, more general GIS and database management, biological survey, fire management to protect a rare wattle, fire ecology, the planning and implementation of prescribed fire on national parks, and wetland inventory and ecology.