Details as at 1989

ABOUT THE WRITER

Andrew Warner is Forest Management Superintendent for Associated Forest Holdings Pty. Ltd. (a subsidiary of APPM Forest Products) in North-Western Tasmania. He is responsible for all forest management aspects of a large area involving native forest and pine and eucalypt plantations. Since completing his M.Sc. in Forest Management at the Australian National University in 1982 he has overseen the development of Computerised Systems for forest management. His visit to the West Coast of North America was to widen his knowledge of the applications of microcomputer technology within the forest industry and on return to compile a manual that will have extensive application throughout Australia. Mr. Warner feels that such a manual will help realise the tremendous potential that microcomputers have for improving efficiency within the forest industries.
