Casey's Remarkable Collection of Genealogical Sources for Kerry and Cork ... and How to Use It

A New Acquisition of the Irish Emigration Library, plus Finding Aids for Users

by Michele Patin

he Irish Emigration Library at the Irish Cultural and Heritage Center (ICHC) recently acquired a complete set of the sixteen-volume collection of works edited by Dr. Albert Eugene Casey entitled *O'Kief, Coshe Mang, Slieve Lougher, and Upper Blackwater in Ireland.*¹

The present article is intended as a general introduction to this acquisition, with a special focus on using the Casey collection for genealogical research of sacramental records in combination with the LDS' "International Genealogical Index®" (IGI). Some new finding aids compiled by IGSW members appear at the end of this article.

Introduction

This hard-to-find collection exists in entirety on the shelves of fewer than fifty libraries around the world, and the Irish Emigration Library is blessed to now be among them. Partial collections exist elsewhere (for example, the Milwaukee County Federated Library System has Vols. 5 and 7, shelved in the reference section of the Central Library Local History Reading Room, call number 929.3+C338). Previously, the only sets located near Wisconsin researchers were at the Minnesota Genealogical Society in St. Paul, Minnesota and at the Newberry Library in Chicago, Illinois. Numerous single volumes and sets are also in the hands of private owners.

A set is maintained in the LDS Family History Library (British Book section, FHL call no. 941.5 D2c). Because of its scarcity, most of the volumes have been filmed by the LDS (Film Nos. listed in Appendix I at the end of this article). The microform version is decidedly more difficult to work with than the bound volumes, not only because of miniscule type size, but also because "leafing" quickly through several 35mm reels is no easy feat.

¹ O'Kief, Coshe Mang, Slieve Lougher, and Upper Blackwater in Ireland. Birmingham, Ala., published and bound privately for the Knocknagree Historical Fund, 1952-1971; sixteen volumes and index; secondary editor on several volumes is Thomas Eugene P. Dowling, Schoolmaster and Principal, Curraghagalla National School, Parish of Glanworth, Fermoy, Co. Cork, Ireland.

An excellent overview ² of the Casey collection was written by Ray Marshall and published by the IGSI in The Septs, and it is a perfect introduction to the work. (Issues of The Septs are available at the Irish Emigration Library; the article is also published on the IGSI website.) Marshall's article contains an very useful abridged "Table of Contents" for each of the volumes, which in itself gives a good picture of the scope of the work.

A 1991 article "Portrait of An Irish-American Pathologist And Collector of Historical Records" by T. E. Dowling³ presents a fascinating account of Dr. Casey's life, family connections, prior publications and the influences that prompted him to begin the "O'Kief, Coshe Mang" project.

People familiar with Kerry and Cork may have heard of the collection referred to colloquially as "O'Kief" or by acronym ("O'K" or "OCM") or, more affectionately, as simply "Casey." It is widely referenced as mandatory viewing for this area in how-to books on Irish research, and makes frequent appearances in reading lists and bibliographies.

John Grenham's popular guide, Tracing Your Irish Ancestors ⁴, includes the Casey collection as a source in the Reference Guide Section, Ch. 13 "Roman Catholic Registers" for counties Cork (Northwest, pp. 240-243) and Kerry (pp. 276-281). Registers transcribed in the Casey collection are indicated as "Published" in the "Location" column and annotated as "O'K" in the "Reference" column. Gravestone Inscriptions are also cited by Grenham Ch. 12 "County Source Lists" for Cork (pp. 131-2) and Kerry (pp. 160-161).

Tracing Your Kerry Ancestors ⁵ offers several useful guides to Co. Kerry records which are transcribed in Casey (abbreviated as OCM). Most notable is the table of "Catholic Church Records" in Ch. 5, pp. 28-34 and the table of "Printed Memorial Inscriptions" in Ch. 9, pp. 52-55. Both these tables cite the Casey volume(s) to consult to locate the records in question. The book also has a good overview of the Casey collection in general.

Likewise, sacramental registers for Co. Cork transcribed in Casey are summarized in tabular form in Tracing Your Cork Ancestors ⁶. In that work, "Table 2," pp. 56-58 lists Catholic parishes and sources for them, including Casey, while "Table 3," pp. 60-65 lists Church of Ireland parishes and sources, including Casey. Finally, a complete list of published gravestone inscriptions is found on pp. 77-80, again citing those which appear in Casey.

Scope of the Work

One glance at the shelf in our library — more than three feet of stout, hardbound volumes — gives at least a hint of the reason why Casey has proven enormously popular (Fig. 1). A look inside (grab, for example, Vol. 8, open it up and peer in giddy disbelief at the 2,638 photoreduced pages) will confirm your suspicions: this is a monumental hoard of information (Fig. 2). According to Casey's own estimate, he accumulated more than 3,000,000 individual Irish personal names indexed within the set.

Indeed, the collection contains a vast amount of material of interest to the Irish genealogist, some "almost" primary (i.e. photostatic copies of original records), most secondary (e.g. transcriptions of records, re-typed extracts from manuscripts, books and articles). A large quantity of these are precisely those records most desirable to genealogical researchers: baptisms and marriages (mostly Roman Catholic, but plenty of Church of Ireland and some Quaker). An unusual strength of the collection, though, is that Casey amassed just about anything that seemed pertinent to his Cork/Kerry research universe: family histories and pedigrees, newspaper abstracts, rental lists and estate ledgers, indeces to wills, pieces of the Tithe Applotment Books and Griffith's Primary Valuation, Elizabethan fiants, census fragments, tombstone inscriptions, even excerpts from the Annals of the Four Masters. In addition, there is graphical information: townland maps, estate maps, Casey's own maps of surname distributions, reproductions of Taylor and Skinner's Eighteenth Century road maps, maps from William Petty's 1641 Down Survey, and a sprinkling of photographs.

In geographic terms, the genealogically most useful information in Casey treats a small portion of Munster: chiefly eastern Kerry and northern Cork. Casey's research universe was well defined, as his title suggests (taken from a map published in Pacata Hibernia and reproduced as the frontispiece of Vol. 1). The area corresponds roughly to the catchments of the Maine (Mang) and Upper Blackwater rivers. The "Slieve Lougher" (or Sliabh Luachra) of the title refers to an upland "bog with cattle" which has for centuries served as the boundary dividing Munster into Desmond (south) and Thomond (north). Today, Sliabh Luachra is a region famed for its traditional set dancing, polkas and slides. Thus, while the series title appears arcane and obscure, it does fall naturally on the landscape and forms a logical, historical framework for viewing family histories and local events. (Fig. 3; see also Casey's tracing "Map of Slieve Lougher and Upper Blackwater" in the frontispiece of Vol. 2.) In fact, the area roughly corresponds to the boundaries of the baronies of Magunihy, Trughanucmy in Co. Kerry, and Duhallow and East and West Muskerry in Co. Cork (with a bit of Orrery & Kilmore and Fermoy included.) There is a good deal of additional material pertaining to general Munster history and geography, and Casey included many sources of wider interest, especially on early Irish history.

Lastly, there is what could only be called "the other stuff." Dr. Casey was a pathologist by training (b, 1903; Spring Hill College, A.B., 1922; St. Louis University, M.D., 1927; Pathologist and teacher of pathology, Rockefeller Institute, 1927-1934; University of Virginia, 1934-1938; Louisiana State University, 1938-1942; Pathologist and Director of Laboratories at Birmingham Baptist Hospitals, 1942-1972; d. 1982). Several of his publications, including this unique collection of Irish sources, furthered his unorthodox notions of population genetics and Irish prehistory. So, here and there are found pages of craniometrics, pathologies, blood group studies, etc. which curiously punctuate the genealogical and historical material. 8

Priceless... and Otherwise Out-of-Reach

The work escalates in value when you realize that virtually all of the Roman Catholic sacramental registers which were transcribed by Casey with the approval of Most Rev. Denis Moynihan, Bishop of Kerry in the 1960s and 1970s, are now "closed." It is no longer possible to inspect the microfilms of this diocese at the National Library of Ireland in Dublin without the express consent of the bishop. ⁹

Research in Diocese of Kerry records is therefore not simple. Films of the Roman Catholic parish registers are not available from the LDS for the reason stated above. A small number of Diocese of Kerry parish registers were microfilmed by the Maritime History Archive of Canada with the bishops' permission prior to the decision to restrict public access; these are archived at the Memorial University of Newfoundland, and staff there will do research for a fee (see appendix). Unfortunately, at the time that this article was written, the Killarney Heritage Centre at Cathedral Walk — the clearinghouse established for lookups in the Roman Catholic registers and other sources — has closed, with no known date of re-opening. And so the Casey collection takes on a singular importance.

And is it just possible that the Casey collection contains parish register material which has never been transcribed or filmed anywhere else – even in the NLI? Perhaps. Author Tony McCarthy relates in his Irish Roots Guide how he first discovered a set of reportedly "destroyed" early baptismal records from Ballyvourney Catholic Parish, resting comfortably in Vol. 11 of O'Kief, Coshe Mang... etc.; the items were prefaced by A.E. Casey's personal account of finding the fragments of the ancient book of baptisms in the Rectory at Ballyvourney, which Casey promptly tidied up and transcribed for posterity (McCarthy 1991: pp. 33-34).

⁸ The reader will be forgiven if he can't resist the urge to peek at, say, Casey's article "Celibacy and the Brain Drain" in the introduction of Vol. 14, or "The Anthropometric Identity of Alabama Shell-Mound People c. 10,000 B.C., Polynesians, Pelasgians & Fomorians" in Vol. 15 — but don't say I didn't warn you.

⁷ Who's Who in the South and Southwest, 1973; J. McKeen Cattell and Jacques Cattell, eds.; American Men and Women of Science: a Biographical Directory; 1971

⁹ This is also true of two other dioceses; according to the NLI's official policy, "Microfilms of the registers for dioceses other than Cashel, Kerry and Limerick are freely available for consultation. The aforementioned require written permission from the Bishop of the diocese." The present Bishop is Most Rev. William Murphy, D.D., Bishop of Kerry, Bishop's House, Killarney, Co. Kerry, Ireland; Tel. 064 31168 Fax. 064 31364; requests will only be granted to relatives/descendants, and for a search of no more than five specific parishes.

Fig. 3 Casey's Research Area

A Method to the Madness

A treasure trove indeed. But, of course there's a catch. As with the confiscated loot of buccaneers and pirates of old, Casey collected as much as he could in an apparently opportunistic fashion, and then "buried" the treasure just a little haphazardly. A quick perusal of each table of contents reveals that the series publication is, at best, unsystematic, or at worst, utterly devoid of logic. Tithe Applotment Book fragments can be found in three different volumes; Kenmare estate records scattered over four different volumes; Killarney marriages from 1833-1840 are in Vol. 7, while 1845- 1860 is in Vol. 8 and 1865-1900 are in Vol. 14, etc. You get the idea. The effect can be so daunting that a first time user might be overwhelmed and never probe further. Fortunately, there is a map, and "X" does mark the spot where the treasure you covet can be retrieved.

Part of the collection's apparent haphazardness has to do with the fact that the work was privately published on a pay-as-you-go basis over many years. Vol. 13 appeared in 1952, followed by Vol. 2 in 1959; then Vols. 3 through 13 were published in rapid success from 1960-1967 — not necessarily in numerical order — and Vol. 14 (1968), Vol. 15 (1971) and Vol. 16 (1969) finished off the series. Casey hired transcribers and typists and enlisted much volunteer help both in Ireland and in the U.S. to gather and record his material. When opportunities arose to inspect or copy a source, he availed himself and decided to fit each new piece into his next volume apparently on the assumption that it would, somehow, all come together in the end. Casey's personal introduction to each volume reads like a Christmas letter from home, announcing new arrivals, summarizing ongoing projects, and promising future missives.

Volume Tables of Contents

To make sense of it all, there are three finding aids. First, each volume contains a Table of Contents which lists topics and page ranges. There are occasional errors and omissions, but the Table of Contents is generally helpful if you know what locale and record type you seek. Ray Marshall's compilation (see below) is especially useful, as it puts all the contents in one place (though without page numbers), and it is searchable on-line. A more detailed version with page numbers – but only for Co. Kerry records – was compiled later and appears on the Rootsweb Co. Kerry page at: www.rootsweb.com/~irlker/casey.html.

The Index Supplement

Second, there is the Index supplement. This is a slender comb-bound volume which accompanies the collection, and it is the first place a novice user would turn for help. But, although it does include a recapitulation of the table of contents of each volume in turn (pp. 95-137), and topical indeces of record types (surname studies, sacramental records, civil registrations, etc.) the supplement is not a conventional subject/page index. Much of the Index supplement has a hodge-podge of items that are decidedly not index-like. For example, there are several plotter maps, such as changes in property boundaries on the Kenmare estate, and townland/parish maps based on the Ordinance Survey originals. And there are magnificent tabulations, such as a summary of statistically significant concentrations of surnames in the research area, detailed by parish — something like the Matheson report but much more finely tuned. The "index" volume also includes a reprint of Dr. Casey's article, "Odyssey of the Irish documented by blood group and craniometric analysis" from the Alabama Journal of Medical Science (Vol. 15, No. 1; 1978). Why this material is bound in the index supplement is not readily apparent!

The Alphabetical Name Index

Lastly, and most importantly, there is a real index, an alphabetical name index, in the back of each individual volume, which gives page number citations for all surname/given name occurrences in that volume. There are a few peculiarities of long name truncations and slight mis-alphabetizings, but the index is by-and-large reliable. It may not get you to where you are going, however. Looking for Denis Leary? So am I, and there are 274 page numbers cited for him in Vol. 7 alone! Which one is mine?

The name index must be used in conjunction with the Table of Contents to narrow the search for a record of a potential ancestor. So, if you have a location, first find the volume and page range in Casey pertaining to the record type you seek; then check the name index for an entry matching your ancestral name in the back of the volume, and finally scan the page numbers shown there for one or more which fall in the correct page range. This will let you zero in on just one or a few entries to look up. (Fig. 4)

In addition, Vol. 11 has a short but useful table of contents, including a synopsis on pages xii-xiii showing which records (including Roman Catholic, Church of Ireland and other church records) are transcribed and where. ¹⁰

Caveat Lector

There is some quirkiness to Casey that is worthy of note. Beware, reader, of stops and starts: some of the records are slightly jumbled with respect to year. It is essential to scan within the entire page range for the dates you seek. In some cases, a year appears to end and a new one begins — and then entries for the previous year are resumed. For example, Church of Ireland records for Mallow are stated to include 1783 - 1870 (Vol. 11 p. 1745); upon close examination, however, records for 1776-1783 suddenly pop up on page 1750 (a serendipitous find to be sure). Sometimes the stops and starts reflect the fact that two church registers later combined into one, or two books were kept. In at least one instance (Ballyvourney, Vol. 11), Casey explains that the records were found in rather a sorry state on scattered individual leaves, and he attempted to reconstruct the correct year and put them in the proper chronological order, labelled as "possibly missing year X."

The stop-and-start effect in the transcriptions is most pronounced with Church of Ireland records. This is in part because many Church of Ireland record sets are quite short. For example, Casey records only 10 Clondrohid marriages between 1848-1935. It is true that many Church of Ireland parishes in this region served a small population, so it is difficult to assess if the records Casey transcribed are genuinely exhaustive or partially incomplete. In any event, don't blink when leafing through, or you will miss them.

Likewise, it is wise to carefully examine the first page of new sections. These often have clues to the location of the previous records if continued from a different volume or page range. In some cases, though, there are inaccuracies. On page 1246 of Vol. 11, baptisms for Millstreet and Cullen are resumed, with a note "Continued from Vol. IX pages 690-700," when in fact the earlier entries are in Vol. XI (yet another reason to avoid those Roman Numerals!). In Vol. 2, marriages from Dromtariff and Derrinagree commence with the year 1832 on page 102, with the cryptic yet encouraging note "Continued from previous register, not available." One would prefer, however, not to be led on in this manner.... for the previous register does not seem to exist, or at least it was never transcribed by Casey.

Lilliputian Type

The final difficulty of working with Casey is that the reproduction standards were not very high (as can be seen from the figures). The originals were mostly mimeographed or multilithed. To compound the problem, mid-way through Vol. 4, it was decided to photoreduce each page of the typed manuscript and offset print the pages four-up on each leaf (as in Fig. 2). This certainly saved paper, but the effect on readability was predictably disastrous. And the individual volume indeces were created in the days of punch-cards and card-sorting machines. Greenbar printouts were generated and then photoreduced to fit in multi-column fashion on each master page. The reader will appreciate that a pair of magnifying eyeglasses or a handheld lens is an absolute must.

In summary, the Casey collection certainly has its faults and idiosyncracies, but, oh, what a collection! For the amount and variety of material published, there is probably nothing quite like it for any other part of Ireland.¹¹

Strategies for Using Casey

So, how does one approach a vast, sixteen-volume collection of material that might or might not be relevant to one's own research? The answer, as you might expect, depends on what you want to know and how much you already know.

General Browsing & Locality Research

If you are simply looking for hard-to-find tracts on, for example, pre-Cromwellian Irish history, Casey is a marvelous place to simply browse. You will find maps and prose works galore, a few in entirety, some in extract form. Casey is also a wonderful vantage for gaining a better view of your ancestor's place of origin, with many local maps, histories of leading families, etc. in the region of east Kerry and north Cork

The only published work which seems to come close is Riobard O'Dwyer's collected family histories of several parishes in southwest Cork: the Who Were My Ancestors? series. The Irish Emigration Library holds copies of three (Allihies, Bere Island and Castletownbere) of the four published books in that series, which focuses especially on Roman Catholic baptisms and marriages, but also touches on Church of Ireland and civil records. O'Dwyer's series is distinguished by the fact that the records have been associated together by family and place, and many are accompanied by oral histories gathered by O'Dwyer over several decades of research. The parishes in O'Dwyer's opus are contiguous with some of the parishes in Casey's, a remarkable and fortuitous coincidence for anyone with ancestors in south Kerry and southwest Cork.

Two other works of grandiose scope of interest to researchers in Kerry and Cork come to mind. The first, Historical and Topographical Notes, Etc., on Buttevant, Castletownroche, Doneraile, Mallow, and Places in Their Vicinity, Vol. I-IV is a hfascinating collection of historical, geographical and genealogical facts for several north Cork baronies amassed by Col. James Grove White in the early 20th century. As this area was just within Dr. Casey's area of interest, he reprinted the entire four volume set in facsimile form as a compliment to his own work! "...Col. White's scholarly contributions are, we believe, complimentary to the O'Kief series and worthy of republication. Colonel White's volumes cannot be purchased at any price." (from Casey's introduction page iii.) This supplementary reprint within Casey is sometime referred to as "Volume 16" although it bears no volume number.

The second work, similar to Grove White's but more condensed and concerning all of Co. Kerry, is Jeremiah King's County Kerry Past and Present, first published in 1931. This compendium has short historical, topographic and genealogical entries in encyclopedic form, and is notable for also listing persons of a given surname and their townland, extracted from the 1901 census. Parts of this helpful work have likewise been gobbled up into Casey (transcribed, not in facsimile form): Vol. 6 Item 2 in Casey is: "County Kerry Past and Present, A Handbook to the Locations and Family Histories of the County by the Late Jeremiah King of Killeentierna and Aghadoe Parishes (10,915 persons listed)" (pp. 95-280), described as "Data relating mostly to the baronies of Magunihy and Trughanacmy, excerpted with the authorization of the publishers" and continued in Vol. 15, Item 23 (pp. 1916-2001).

Seeking a Ancestral Names in a Specific Locale

Most people who turn to Casey, however will have a narrower focus in mind, looking for a specific ancestor or family group.

If the place is known, then the technique described above will help you find records in Casey to produce details of an ancestor's life. Find the volume and page range in Casey pertaining to the place and records you want; then check the surname/personal name index in the back of the book for an entry matching your ancestral name, note the page number(s), and collect your data.

Example (Figs. 2 and 4): Seeking Catherine Hayes, probably born 1870s, probably in RC Parish of Firies, Co. Kerry, daughter of Jeremiah Hayes. Baptismal records for these years in this parish are listed in the Table of Contents for Vol. 8 (I chose a good example, as the Table of Contents actually is slightly in error in this case — baptisms are not itemized, but lumped with marriages, though close inspection shows that the baptisms commence on page 304 and end on page 387) Turning to the index at the back of the volume, I see an entry for "Hayes, Catherin" (note the truncation) followed by several page numbers, seven of which fall in the Firies Baptisms page range. Turning to those pages, I inspect the registers and get lucky: the very first one (page 304) lists a Catherine Hayes baptised 21 Dec. 1872, parents Jeremiah Hayes and Catherine Moriarty of Scart, a perfect match for the names and townland of my great grandmother Nora Hayes' parents. I now have documentation for a suspected sibling.

Seeking an Ancestor in an Unknown Locale

Few lookups would be as straightforward as this example, though, as usually more variables are unknown. What if I were looking for Catherine Hayes, but I did not know her place of birth/baptism? What if I were looking for any likely Hayeses? Surname distribution information helps, and Casey give some, in the previously mentioned Index Supplement, and also in the 1851 surname distributions by parish found in Vol. 3, tabulated on pages 618-625 and depicted in maps pp. 626-645.

However, seeking an ancestor with a common name or surname will be time consuming. As you can imagine, several –possibly all – volumes would have to be consulted and many dozens of name variations checked. Or, one might elect to merely scan the transcripts of baptisms, marriages, tombstones, etc. for the most likely locales in hopes of "bumping into" my ancestor, rather like standing on the corner of Hollywood and Vine for a decade or two....

There's Gotta Be a Better Way

There is a better way... at least for identifying many baptisms and marriages. One of the best finding aids for Casey isn't part of the Casey collection at all. It's the LDS' International Genealogical Index (IGI). In addition to being everyone's index of first resort for identifying possible genealogical connections, the IGI has some shortcuts to finding information extracted from Casey. Many thousands of christening and marriage records derived from the sacramental registers published in Casey were extracted for the IGI. This means that the IGI can be used as a makeshift index to Casey — for baptisms and marriages only. That's a lot of records, and since the IGI has moved from fiche to CD-ROM and now to on-line version, the power of the LDS's FamilySearch can be put to use to turbo-charge your search for information in sources – such as Casey — from which so many IGI extracts were made.

The most authoritative place to learn more about the IGI, its history, purpose and the extraction program which created it is from the Resource Guides published by the LDS on this subject. "International Genealogical Index (on microfiche)," Publication No. 31026 and "Using the International Genealogical Index® (on compact disc)," Publication No. 31025 both give useful background and step-by step use of the IGI in its two earlier formats. For help with the on-line version of the IGI, do read the LDS' own "Tips on how to search the International Genealogical Index" (linked from the custom search form for the IGI at the FamilySearch web page). An explanation of IGI sources and the meaning of batch numbers is found in the Resources Guide "International Genealogical Index (IGI): Finding a Source," Publication No. 31024. More detailed information can also be found in the "International Genealogical Index Reference Guide" in section "Z" of the microfiche version.

There are Internet genealogy sites and help groups geared to making more effective use of the on-line IGI available at the LDS web page. Try, for example: http://geocities.com/Heartland/Trail/8333/index2.html or http://www.janhart.net/batch.htm

If you do not have access to the Internet at home, most public libraries have personal computers with Internet access, and the Irish Emigration Library is equipped with two Windows workstations with Internet access.

The on-line version of the IGI is particularly useful in this regard because although Casey is itself indexed by surname and personal name, how would you ever going "let your fingers do the walking" through all sixteen volumes — draped octopus-like over three or four card tables? Instead, let the IGI do the page-turning for you.

Put Casey to Bat for You with the IGI

For starters, and to get an inkling of the astonishing amount of information extracted from Casey and entered into the IGI, try this experiment: Go to the LDS Family Search page http://www.familysearch.org and choose "Search for Ancestors." Click on "International Genealogical Index®" and a search menu will appear. Try searching for my "Denis Leary" again, this time in the IGI, in the region "British Isles". The search returns 233 matches (Fig. 5). Virtually all of them are taken from Casey (in a moment you'll see how you can tell).

So far so good. But FamilySearch with the IGI lets you tailor your search much more specifically. The IGI Search entry screen allows you to enter the name, the event type, a date within a given region or range of years, and the region/country/county. Parents or spouse name can be used for still greater specificity.

What about those 233 Denis Learys? Mine should have been born some time in the 1860s, somewhere near Killarney. I can re-try my search adding specific event, time and place parameters (Fig. 6):

This time I get 21 results. Much more manageable. And now I may have nailed him. Item 9 is a Denis Leary born in 1865 in Killarney (Fig. 7):

Clicking on the source call number tells me that this particular IGI entry comes from a civil record, the Civil Registration of Births. Is this is the right fellow? My Denis Leary should have a sister Mary, born in the same time range. I search for Mary, again using the custom search parameters. But this time I enter parents names: are there any Mary Learys born to the same parents as Denis Leary? Yes:

And this Mary is likewise born in Killarney. Clicking on this entry reveals a different source this time: a batch (C700903) of christenings and an IGI source call number and extract printouts taken from Casey (Fig. 8).

By doing a little digging in the linked on-line Family History Library catalog, I will learn that this record is derived from Vol. 5 of Casey. Now I am hot on the trail, and I haven't even opened a single volume of Casey yet.

Who are Denis and Mary's parents? Where were they married? Did they have other children? These questions can be asked of the IGI even though it does not actually show family relationships. The key is the batch numbers.

The IGI batch number simply relates together a group of extracted records taken from a given source and used to generate entries in the IGI. It has no significance for family relationships necessarily. In the instance of Denis Leary above, for example, the batch of civil births entered in the IGI collect together many unrelated persons from a fairly large registration district. But sometimes the batch number is meaningful, as when the names are extracted from a single parish register over many years. Both christening and marriage batches derived from Casey meet this criterion.

Returning to the IGI Search screen, I now put the full power of Family Search to work. This time, I enter only the surname Leary, along with the parent's names, region (mandatory) and the batch number C700903:

Now, both Denis and Mary Leary turn up (Denis had been hiding in the IGI as "Ds." I wondered where he was hiding! Remember to search alternate spellings and abbreviations.) (Fig. 9)

Next I look for a marriage record for Denis and Mary's parents. I am using the IGI Search again, entering as many limiting variables as a I can, this time seeking a Cornelius Leary with a spouse named Margaret Leary, using the information from Mary Leary's christening extract. Bingo! (Fig. 10)

Just now you are wondering what this has to do with Casey. I have just extended a family tree laterally and by a full generation in a few minutes using the IGI. But now that I have collected these extracts, I want to get more contextual information which is contained in the parish registers, and which is not included in the IGI – names of witnesses and sponsors, townland names, etc.. Casey does have this information, and these contextual clues are the key to interpreting what is found, confirming that you have the right family, and planning future searches.

By going to the IGI Search screen, executing a search of the Family History Catalog, I can discover that the film 823804 containing the marriage record for Cornelius Leary and Margaret Leary is in Vol. 7 of Casey.

So, turning to Casey, Vol. 7, marriage records for Killarney, on page 312, I learn that the wedding was in Knockeenduv, that Cornelius Leary was the son of Denis Leary and Mary Keren and that his bride Margaret Leary was the daughter of Thomas Leary and Mary Murphy, that the marriage was witnessed by the fathers of the bride and groom, and that the Rev. William Horgan officiated (Fig. 12). None of those details were in the IGI.

Since I am on a roll, I am going to see what else I can find on these families. More digging in the IGI reveals that Margaret Leary's baptism has also been extracted, in batch number C700903, and now I want to know if there are other children who are siblings to Margaret, children of Thomas Leary and Mary Murphy. Again, I use the batch number to associate the Leary surname with parent's given names. This search turns up additional siblings for Margaret Leary (Fig. 12). Say, now my blank family group sheet will come in handy!

You can see that this technique can quickly turn up leads in Casey, but it is never an end in itself: simply a tool for focusing your perusal of those sixteen gigantic tomes.

Unfortunately, not all Casey records were extracted for the IGI. Return to an earlier example, looking for Catherine Hayes (Fig. 4). A search of the IGI does not turn up the right record from Casey, as the Firies parish records were not included in IGI because of their late date. Well, you can't have everything!

This exercise shows how a two step approach will maximize your use of Casey for finding baptisms and marriages: consult the IGI for preliminary searching, then bring in your "prospect list" to the Irish Emigration Library to follow up. The additional details in Casey's transcription may give you the clues you need to interpret what you've found, reconstruct the family or gather leads for additional research. The trained staff at the Library will be on hand during library hours to help you with searching in Casey for your ancestors. Of course the most fun is being able to make that "great discovery" by yourself.

Appendices I-III which follow this article are designed to help you use the Casey collection by itself and in conjunction with the IGI. Appendix IV offer suggestions for alternative sources for Kerry and Cork material not included in Casey along with sources for neighboring counties.

The Undiscovered Country

The indexing techniques described above are effective for searching specific records in Casey. But Casey is much, much more, and some of the best material lies in completely uncharted territory. Your research in Casey may force you to work with just a few volumes, but resist the urge to ignore the rest. On many occasions, simply sitting down with a volume of Casey and leafing through, page by page, will turn up unexpected delights. Look carefully at each section, and watch for short items tucked in between two larger ones – items sometimes left out of the Table of Contents.

This article has focused on the sacramental records as these are the least accessible and most range earlier than civil records. Don't forget that Casey also contains a mountain of information on post-1864 births, deaths and marriages. Some of these are also extracted in the IGI, directly from the original source, the General Registry Office. The Roman Catholic and Church of Ireland records extracted for the IGI have the advantage that searches keyed on batch number are more likely to yield complete or partial family groups. This is because the batch number corresponds to a single church or parish where a family may have resided for several generations, unlike civil batch numbers which cover one or two years but range over a wide area.

And don't overlook tombstone transcriptions, many of which are also published in Casey and provide important genealogical evidence. Casey is the most comprehensive single source for published gravestone memorials, many dating back to the 1700s but ranging well into the Twentieth Century.

The Casey collection is remarkable resource which can be mined for genealogical leads for many years. Taking time to familiarize yourself with this unique collection may inspire you about new ways to advance your research in Kerry and Cork. Spend a few evenings at the Irish Emigration Library with a new friend: A. E. Casey.

Acknowledgements

The author gratefully acknowledges the tireless efforts of Irish Genealogical Society of Wisconsin (IGSW) member Barb Glassel in helping to compile the finding aids to Co. Cork and Kerry in the accompanying appendices, and for reviewing an early draft of this article. Without her painstaking help, Casey would have remained even more inscrutable, and the task of compilation simply too intimidating. I also thank IGSW member and current president Tom Cannon and IGSW member Gary Shea for their review of prior drafts. Their kind comments and corrections served to round out my own shortcomings and made the piece a more helpful and readable contribution than it might have been. Any errors, omissions and imperfections which remain are, of course, entirely my own.

Finally, I give an appreciative nod to others who have illuminated Casey's magnum opus long before me, especially Ray Marshall and Beth Mullinax in their previous publications on Casey for the Irish Genealogical Society, International (IGSW).

Almost a half century since the publication of the first volume, Casey's O'Kief, Coshe Mang, Slieve Lougher, and Upper Blackwater in Ireland continues to inspire. I hope the new finding aids which follow in Appendix I-IV will fuel a renewed interest in this important collection.

Appendix III Compiled by Michele Patin and Barb Glassel

Where to Find IGI Extracted Births and Marriages for Counties Cork and Kerry in the Casey Collection

Preface

For researchers desiring to use the International Genealogical Index (IGI) as a fast "superindex" to records transcribed in Casey, the following appendix may prove useful. It will also be helpful for anyone wishing to find precisely which Casey volume and page to turn to view specific records. This appendix attempts to be a concordance between baptisms and marriages extracted in the IGI and the published information in Casey. The compilers, Michele Patin and Barb Glassel of the Irish Genealogical Society of Wisconsin (IGSW), stress the word attempt, as it became all too clear to us why such a concordance has not been done before! We relied on a combination of approaches to derive the information: Casey's own Tables of Contents, careful perusal of the volumes themselves, and entries in the LDS Family History Library (FHL) Catalog on-line. A few prefatory comments are in order:

First, there is the potential confusion of civil versus parochial names for administrative divisions, a problem familiar to most genealogical researchers. This is compounded by redrawing and renaming of administrative and ecclesiastical boundaries over time, not to mention differences in orthography. The compilers used the parish names and spelling convention employed by Casey, with cross-references to other names as appropriate. Note that the appendix does not indicate civil parish separately, as this would have made the tabular display too unwieldy. It is suggested that the reader also consult Mitchell's A Guide to Irish Parish Registers or similar work if in doubt about civil parish and Church of Ireland names versus Roman Catholic parish names.

Second, some late Nineteenth Century records published in Casey were not extracted for the IGI in consideration of privacy issues. The compilers elected to catalogue the full range of records appearing in Casey, even though post-1875 entries generally will not be found in the IGI because of the LDS's privacy policy. Thus, the appendix indexes some records with no corresponding IGI batch number, labelled as "(not in IGI)." (Note that none of the Firies, Co. Kerry RC baptisms and marriages in Vol. 8 were extracted as almost all are post-1875). Several other parish registers were published in Casey, but have not (yet) been extracted in the IGI for reasons unknown; most of these are CI records from Co. Cork. Again, these are included, but labelled as "(not in IGI)."

Third, there are numerous IGI batches relating to CI baptisms and marriages in Co. Cork which were extracted, not from Casey, but from other sources for CI parish records, such as the Grove White collection (see Appendix IV). Some of these are also duplicated in Casey. The compilers decided to tabulate all IGI batch numbers corresponding to the Casey research area within Cork, and note both the Casey reference and other source materials.

Finally, users of Casey are cautioned to scan pages carefully, as there are numerous instances where baptisms and marriages are not quite consecutive (e.g. Boherbue baptisms 1836-1840) or where additions and corrections are inserted (e.g. Boherbue baptisms 1848-1853). Careful scrutiny of nearby pages is almost always fruitful.

The appendix may not be exhaustive, and the compilers are eager to learn of any omissions we have made or inaccuracies we have perpetrated inadvertantly.* We apologize in advance for any errors, but hope that the table proves to be a useful starting point, and we consider it a work in progress. Significant additions and corrections may be published in a future follow-up article.

How to Read the Table:

Parishes are subdivided by county and arranged in alphabetical order by name. Column one shows the parish (in some cases church) name, column two indicates the denomination, column three gives the IGI batch number (if relevant), column four shows the range of years and sacraments covered, and the last column references the volume and page number in Casey where the parish register transcription may be found.

^{*} Additions and orrections to the appendix may be addressed to the compilers, Michele Patin and Barb Glassel c/o The Irish Genealogical Society, P.O. Box 13766, Wauwatosa, WI 53213-0766 or c/o The Irish Emigration Library, 2133 West Wisconsin Avenue, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53233

Where to Find IGI Extracted Births and Marriages for Counties Cork and Kerry in the Casey Collection

IGI entries for Co. Kerry are almost exclusively based on records published in Casey. The transcribed baptisms and marrages in Casey for Kerry are virtually all from Roman Catholic churches (a reflection of the predominantly Roman Catholic population); and Casey did not publish any records for the west of Kerry, including the Dingle and Iveragh peninsulas and Kenmare area.

What If It's NOT in Casey?

Other Sources for Kerry, Cork and Adjoining Areas

The remaining appendix outlines alternative sources for those seeking ancestors in Kerry, Cork and neighboring areas who failed to find the sacramental records they need in the Casey collection. Again, the list is by no means exhaustive, but strives to document sources which are readily available at the Irish Emigration Library in Milwaukee, from the LDS through Family History Centers, or by correspondence.

Mallow Heritage Centre – North Cork

The Mallow Heritage Centre (MHC) is situated in "Casey country" and holds numerous records which cannot be found within the Casey collection itself. Some of these are computerized. Research is conducted by the Heritage Centre staff for a fee, and can be arranged by correspondence. Details can be found on their web site, as follows:

"This centre offers a Partial Service for the records within its designated area which encompasses virtually all of County Cork excluding Cork City. It is located in the heart of Duhallow which has now become a major focus for heritage tourism. Sliabh Luachra, with its renouned history of music and culture is in this area. There are also various museums and heritage centres throughout the county.

"The main records include:

Roman Catholic records, the earliest of which date from 1757

Church of Ireland records (Anglician/Episcopalian) commence in 1780

A variety of Main sources are currently being computerised. A delay of two weeks can be expected for a reply to an initial enquiry."

A summary of computerized CI and RC parish records appears below. The Centre can be contacted at:

Maritime History Archive – Kerry and Cork

The Maritime History Archive is a repository of information regarding emigration to, settlement in, history and lifeways of the Maritimes region of Canada. The collection includes significant Irish material, as many settlers were sailors and fishermen originating from the west of Ireland. According to their web site, their "Irish Parish Records Collection 1671-1900" includes 41 reels of microfilm described asfollows:

"This collection consists of microfilm copies of many Roman Catholic parishes in the counties of Kerry, Kilkenny, Waterford, Wexford and Donegal, as well as many Church of Ireland parishes in counties Cork and Waterford. There are also vestry books for two parishes in County Clare: Castletown Arra and Killaloe. The main concentration is from 1750 to 1880. The collection is indexed by parish. The researcher must provide the name of the parish and the approximate dates that they wish to have searched."

Much of this material is of interest to Casey area researchers. The Diocese of Kerry Roman Catholic registers are duplicates of the National Library of Ireland (NLI) films — some of the same parishes which are "closed" and otherwise only available to view at the NLI with the permission of the Bishop. Permission is not necessary at the Maritime History Archive, and staff there will conduct research for a fee. The Archive may be contacted at:

The Grove White Collection – North Cork

Before the Four Courts fire of 1922 which destroyed so many Irish records, Col. James Grove White transcribed Church of Ireland records of north Cork parishes. Grove White also authored several books, most notably the four volumes reproduced as a supplement to the Casey collection.

The LDS has microfilmed the records transcribed by Grove White, and they appear on three rolls of microfilm, 0596420-2, catalogued below. The Church of Ireland parishes/churches comprised, in alphabetical order, are: Ballyclough, Ballyhooly, Bridgetown & Kilcummer, Buttevant, Carrigleamleary, Castlemagner, Castletownroche, Christchurch (Cork), Churchtown, Clenor, Clonfert & Newmarket, Clonmeen, Doneraile, Drishane, Dromtariff, Farahy, Glanworth, Kanturk, Kilbolane, Kilbrin, Kilshannig, Kilworth, Lisgoold, Litter, Mallow, Marshalstown, Monanimy, Mourne Abbey, and Rahan.

Riobard O'Dwyer's Family Histories – Southwest Cork

Beginning in 1977, Riobard O'Dwyer, a National Schoolteacher, began publishing family trees from the Beara peninsula of southwest Cork. The parishes are in the Diocese of Kerry and fall under the closure policy, so these Roman Catholic records are difficult to procure. O'Dwyer worked closely with the RC church registers with the blessing of the local PPs, assembling genealogies from recorded baptisms and marriages. He also compiled data from Church of Ireland, Coast Guard and civil records, the Tithe and Griffith's. Most importantly, O'Dwyer collected oral histories from many persons now deceased, whose memories stretched into the nineteenth century. This allowed him to extend genealogies beyond the start date of the written records, trace the emigration of people who left Beara, and augment the family trees with many wonderful, humorous and dramatic stories.

Although the Beara peninsula is outside of Casey's research, it borders south Kerry and the Slieve Lougher area. Some families in O'Dwyer's unpublished histories for Adrigole and Glengarriff in Co. Cork and Bonane in Co. Kerry will be found to overlap with families in Casey's collection. In many ways, O'Dwyer's achievement surpasses Casey's in the degree of detailed genealogical material presented and especially in the place by place, family by family context it provides. A good introduction to O'Dwyer's books, along with an online index of over 14,000 families in the six parishes, may be found on the Irish Genealogical Society International (IGSI) web page at: http://www.rootsweb.com/~irish/igsi_published/berehave.htm. The ICHC Irish Emigration Library has copies of three (Allihies, Bere Island and Castletownbere) of the published volumes, and a set of the IGSI indeces, a superb finding aid to the books (which are not indexed themselves).

Mr. O'Dwyer conducts research for a fee, and some of the books are still in print and may be purchased directly from the author. He also has a large amount of additions and corrections to the family trees already in book form, along with unpublished data on the parishes of Adrigole, and Glengarriff/Bonane. Batch Numbers for IGI Extracts in Co. Limerick

Casey's collection touches only lightly on Co. Limerick material, and includes no RC or CI parish records. Limerick subjects appearing in Casey include: Vol. 3 "Families in North Cork, SE Limerick, NE Kerry & SW Tipperrary, 1851," Vol. 8 "Limerick: Marriage License Bonds, 1844," Vol. 11 "Cork, Kerry & Limerick: Births, Deaths, Marriages & Miscellaneous abstracted from Newspapers, 1749-1872" and "Tombstone Inscriptions Limerick: Mount Collins, Abbeyfeale" and Vol. 14 "Limerick: Quaker Births, Marriages & Deaths, 1623-1863" and "Tipperary and Iffa & Offa West, Limerick & Coshlea, Cork, Orrery & Kitmoe, Fermoy, and Clandons & Clangibbon, Griffith's Householders Lists.

As some Casey researchers have an interest in neighboring Limerick however, we have tabulated below those IGI batch numbers for extracted records in Co. Limerick. Remember that these records do not appear in Casey but can be found on LDS microfilms.

Libraries, Archives & Societies in Kerry & Cork

For those Kerry and Cork researchers who have not found what they seek in the Casey collection, local libraries and societies in Ireland may hold the key. Many such organizations possess hard-to-find records and unique manuscripts available nowhere else. While conducting investigations at these facilities in person is most desirable, it is also possible in many cases to request research by correspondence, or by fax and telephone.

Co. Kerry

Michael H. O'Connor's Tracing Your Kerry Ancestors offers a fund of resources on Co. Kerry, discussing a wide array of record types and enumerating well-known resources, unpublished manuscripts and out-of print books.

The designated heritage centre for Co. Kerry, the Killarney Heritage Centre, formerly located at Bishop's Walk in Killarney Town has closed indefinitely.

The Kerry County Library and the Kerry Archeological and Historical Society are a superb resource for delving into Kerry family history. A comprehensive collection is housed in the Kerry County Library in Tralee, which also is the headquarters of the Kerry Archaeological and Historical Society. The Society publishes an annual Journal, indexed by title from 1968 (No. 1) through 1995 on-line on the web site. The library can be contacted at:

Co. Cork

Tony McCarthy and Tim Cadogan's Tracing Your CorkAncestors is a good starting point for resources of Co. Cork, devoting chapters to various record types, a large bibliography and many useful addresses.

An excellent list of Cork resources was compiled by Nora M. Hickey, B.A., H.D.E. in "Trace Your Ancestors in County Cork," in Irish Family History, the Journal of the Irish Family History Society, Vol. VII, 1991. The list contains addresses of dozens of local repositories and societies able to advance your Cork research. An extract of the list appears on the web site of The Irish Ancestral Reearch Association (TIARA) at: http://tiara.ie/cork.html

The only fully operational designated heritage centre for Cork is at Mallow (q.v.,above, page 27).
