The Androscoggin Historical Society has three general purposes:

— To discover, preserve and disseminate knowledge about the history of Androscoggin County and the State of Maine.

— To preserve historical material and make it available for study; help officials insure the preservation and accessibility of records and archives; conduct archaeological investigations of aboriginal or pioneer sites in the locality; and preserve historic buildings, monuments, and markers.

— To disseminate historical information and arouse interest in the past by publishing historical material in the newspapers or otherwise; and by marking historic buildings, sites and trails.

You can support the Society by becoming a member, making a financial contribution, or donating an historical artifact or document.
