

James King of Haverhill, Grafton County

Asa King of Whitefield, Coos County

Submitted by Gar Watson Watson.gar@gmail.com

James King was of Plaistow, NH when he married Deliverance Harriman of Haverhill, MA on 6 Mar 1760. Plaistow, NH and Haverhill, MA are separated by what is now the state boarder. Plaistow, NH was officially established in 1746 after a boundary dispute between the Massachusetts Bay Colony and the New Hampshire Grants. They lived in in the Plaistow, NH/Haverhill, MA area through the births of their first three children, the third being James on 20 May 1765 recorded at Haverhill. By 27 Jul 1766 James King was named freeman of nearby Hampstead, NH where their next five children were baptized through their son George on 15 Nov 1773. The larger move of the family occurred before the birth their daughter Polly on 3 Oct 1775 recorded at Sutton, NH. Instead of the five to ten miles James and Deliverance may have moved from the Plaistow, NH/Haverhill, MA area of the Hampstead area, it was a move of roughly 60 miles to the Sutton area where James and Deliverance remained through their deaths. Merrimack County was established in 1823, from Rockingham and Hillsborough counties. When James and Deliverance died, Sutton was part of Hillsborough county as Merrimack was not yet formed. The 1790 census for James King listed the household with two males under 16, two males over 16, and three females. Their son John was also listed in Sutton with one male under 16 and two women. That matches up for John and his second wife Ednah and his two known children by that time. By 1790, their son James had settled another 60 miles or so north in Haverhill, NH.

I recently posted this on the genforum.

From the "History of the Town of Haverhill New Hampshire" by William F. Whitcher, 1919, pages 565-6:

"James King was among the early settlers of Haverhill, but the records of his family, except a few obtained from the town records, are fragmentary. There have been no representatives of his family bearing the family name for a period of more than fifty years. He lived as did also his son James King, Jr., on Brier Hill, his farm being at the top of the hill on the road leading from Swiftwater. He married Nov. 23, 1786, Elizabeth Young of Haverhill. His wife, Elizabeth, died Nov. 1825, aged 63. His second wife, Eunice, died Jan. 8, 1846, aged 69. He died Dec. 2, 1850.

Mrs. Emma King is celebrating her 90th birthday today at the home of her son, Maurice J. King, 200 Milford street, with a small dinner party made up of relatives and friends. Mrs. King's mind is keenly alert. She enjoys reading the newspapers and magazines and is interested in the current happenings of the day. She has received several gifts of cards and flowers and also a birthday cake.

Mrs. King was born in Plainfield, Vt., but at an early age moved to Lancaster, where she made her home until eight years ago when her husband, Asa J. King, a Civil War veteran, died. She then came to make her home with her son. Mrs. King has one daughter, Mrs. B.M. Keith, two grandchildren, and two greatgrandchildren, all of whom reside in Rochester, NY. --- Manchester Union Leader, Nov. 6.

History of Coos County, New Hampshire by George Drew Merrill; Syracuse N.Y.: W.A. Fergusson & Co., 1888, 1018 pgs.

THE FIRST "INN-KEEPER" in town was ASA KING, the founder of the village, in that he built and occupied the first house within the present village precincts. It was a low, one-story structure, located upon the spot where the residence of Frank McKean now stands, and here the first public "accommodations for man and beast." In after years a large and commodious tavern was erected nearly opposite, upon the site of, and a part of which is now incorporated in, the store and passenger station of the Whitefield & Jefferson railroad. That first house of the village was built in 1812; the tavern house in 1828. Asa King was a native of Sutton, where he was born in 1779. He was the sixth son of James King, a British soldier, who came to this country in the service of the King during the French and Indian war. This James was an attendant upon Gen. Wolfe at the battle of Quebec, and seized and held the horse of his brave commander after that officer had received his death wound. The wife of Asa King was Polly Cheney, of Sutton, and February 20, 1801, their first child was born, Nathaniel Cheney, followed by Salley, who became the wife of Col. Joseph Colby; Polly, who married Stephen Nichols, an early writer and lecturer upon phrenology; Eliza, who wedded in 1825 with Ashael Aldrich, then of Whitefield; and James A., who became a mariner. The family of Mr. King first occupied their new home in Whitefield on Thanksgiving day, November 1812. Asa was a carpenter and joiner by trade, but his first industry after locating in town was toward the development of his thousand-acre land purchase, and the first opening north of river on the Lancaster road, was made by Mr. King on the present Dr. Waterston farm, and the land cleared for the spring planting of 1814. The second wife of Asa King was Sarah, daughter of Maj. John and Sarah (Smith) Burns. They were married in March 1814. Their children were Hannah, who wedded Richard Lane; John, who married a Stalbird, and is now a resident of Jefferson; Jane, who became Mrs. Stillman Jenney, and removed to Newbury, Vt.; and George, born in 1834, now a resident of Bethlehem. Probably to no resident is the town more indebted for its first glow of prosperity than to Asa King. To his natural endowment of good rugged common sense he added a mechanical skill not among the least for those days, and being physically strong, he was accounted as one of the foremost among the practical every-day men of the town. Mr. King died in June 1855, at his farm home opposite the present homestead of B.F. Lane.

COLONEL JOSEPH COLBY, born in Lisbon, January 21, 1798, came to Whitefield in 1816, and with his brothers, located upon "Comstock Hill" of which he subsequently became sole possessor, and here in the next few years he carved out the nucleus for his farm now occupied by Benjamin F. Lane and the one opposite. In politics Mr. Colby was an old-time abolitionist, and, after its organization, a staunch leader of the Republican party. He served as selectman for many years and in 1832-33-37 represented Whitefield in the General Court. His title of colonel he obtained under the old militia service. He was colonel of the Twenty-fourth Regiment, but resigned his commission in 1832. He died May 1, 1887.

FREE WILL BAPTISTS--Rev. Joshua Quimby was here in 1816-17 forming a religious society, and several persons were baptized, the first being two brothers--Paul and John Buzzell. The place of baptism was in the river just above the site of the present grist mill. Beniah Bean, the first resident minister of Whitefield, settled here in 1819. He was ordained in 1828 at the age of thirty-five years. The ceremonies incident to the ordination were conducted in the old tavern of Asa King. The first meetings of this society were held in Mr. King's barn, which stood on the opposite side of the road where now is the residence of Frank McKean, and in this barn was organized the first church society in town, the Baptist. Among the early laborers in this local Baptist field were Elders Nicholas Bray and Ira Bowles. In 1872 they formed a society to build a church, and work started in the fall of 1873, but it was not dedicated until September 1874. Built on Jefferson street, it contained a vestry, ladies' parlor, kitchen and various anterooms, together with a commodious audience room, with seating capacity for five hundred. In the organ loft is a pipe organ, costing a little over $1,600... Rev. G. Pinkham was pastor when the meeting-house was erected... [more information in original document not included here]

It was through the influence of Mr. Minot that ASA KING was induced to exchange his farm in Sutton for a thousand-acre tract around the present village of Whitefield, of which Mr. King may be said to have been the founder, and, by the same influence, or that of his father, some years before, came Major John Burns, from New Boston, the pioneer of several families from that vicinity and Frankestown in after years. So that to Jonas Minot and his son Samuel may be accorded the credit of Whitefield's first awakening.

Dr. Charles Irwin Lane, who died April 1883, was a son of Richard and Hannah (King) Lane), settled in Whitefield in 1882 [he was born Nov 27, 1854]. He was one of twins, the other being Edward Austin, a promising lawyer of Pittsfield NH. Dr. Charles was a graduate of Hahnemann Medical college, of Philadelphia, and commenced practice at Concord, in April 1878, previous to which he travelled quite extensively in Europe. His brief life was ended after five years practice during which he had gained an enviable reputation as a man and a physician.

White Mountain News, Whitefield,NH, Friday, April 17, 1896.

MRS. HANNAH LANE.

Mrs. Hannah LANE died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Effie Joan Noyes, on Wednesday night in her eighty-second year, after a prolonged and painful illness.

Mrs. Lane was the oldest native of Whitefield at the time of her death, being a daughter of the late Asa King, who was the first settler in Whitefield village. She had passed the most of her life here, witnessing all the changes which have taken place since her childhood days in the old King homestead, then by the village mill but long since demolished. She was a lady of the warmest maternal affections, a devout member of the Advent church, and much beloved for the uniform kindness of her heart. She leaves five sons and two daughters to mourn her loss. Funeral services will be held at Mrs. Noyes' residence at one o'clock, and in the Advent church at two o'clock next Sunday afternoon, Elder Glazier officiating.

Death of Whitefield Born Boy in the West

Asa King Lane, a brother of B. F. and Richard Lane, a native of Whitefield died at his home in Brookfield, Missouri, Dec. 4. Mr. Lane was well known to the older residents here. The Brookfield Gazette had this to say of him:

Asa K. Lane, better known as "A.K." Lane, who passed to the final rest Tuesday evening, Dec. 4, and whose funeral took place from the First Methodist Episcopal church, of which he has been a member for years, Friday at 2 o'clock p.m., the services conducted by Rev. B.H. Wilson, pastor of the church at Linneus, and the Rev. W.F. Clayton, both former pastors of Brookfield, has been a resident of Brookfield actively connected with the business interests and the upbuilding of the city until his heart failed some years ago, since 1869, in which year he came here from his native state, New Hampshire, and engaged in the hardware business in partnership with Augustus Turner, another of Brookfield's pioneer business men. Afterwards he engaged in the grocery business, was for a time a grain buyer and conducted the Clarke hotel for some time.

Mr. Lane was born at Whitefield, NH, March 29, 1836, where he made his home until immediately after the close of the civil war. He spent some time at Buford, S.C., returning to New Hampshire and from there coming to Brookfield.

Mr. Lane has been a familiar figure on the streets of Brookfield for many years, always courteous, always affable and pleasant and his friends were limited only by the number of the acquaintances. His widow and son have the sympathy of all.

Richard Lane Obituary Son of Richard and Hannah King Lane Highly Respected Citizen The death of Richard Lane, the Oldest merchant in Whitefield and Prominant business man in this part of the State, occured Wednesday April 10, 1907 at his home on High Street at 2:00 O' Clock am. He had been a sufferer from Heart Disease for the last few years and during the last winter had been confined to the fortitude that few realized how severe they were. Mr Lane was born April 11 1840 the fourth son of Richard and Hannah Lane and was one of a family of eleven children. He always lived in Whitefield with the exception of six years in his early life four of which were spent in New York City. He fought in the Civil War, being a member of Company L, first Regiment of Heavy Artillery. At the close of the war , he spent one year at Beaufort, South Carolina. on returning to Whitefield he engaged in business, forming the partnership known as Fisk & Lane, which later became the firm of Lane and Quimby . For many years this firm dealt in dry goods and general merchandise. After its dissolution M r Lane conducted the business alone until the spring of 1904 when because of failing health , he sold to Bowker & Company . Mr. lane was in business in Whitefield for thirty seven years and during that time he proved himself a man of the straightest honor, upright in all his dealings. His towns people showed their confidence in him by giving him several responsible offices. He was town Treasurer and also treasurer of the school district for several years. He was a Member of the Board of E ducation and represented the town in the Legislature. He was a Knight Templar, a member of White Mountain Lodge of Free Masons and of Almon B. White Post, G.A.R.
