Booker	Josias	The death of Mr. Josias Booker, of Wessington Court, Herefordshire, and also of Liverpool and Demerara, on the 18th of October, after only three days' illness, has excited deep regret among all connected with the West Indies who were acquainted with him. He belonged to a family the members of which have been connected with the Colony of British Guiana as proprietors and merchants for a long time. His business aptitude and unfailing kindness and courtesy won for him general respect and esteem, especially during the period that he occupied, with great advantage to the Colony, a seat in the Legislature of British Guiana. The Colony has lost in him one who was devoted to its interests. The West India Committee, of which he has been an active member during his residence in England, have passed a resolution expressing their regret at the loss they have sustained. As chairman of the West India Association of Liverpool he attended the Lord Mayor's banquet to the Colonial representatives in July last.	1881	Oct	25

Cameron	Sir Hector Clare	Sir Hector Clare Cameron, Emeritus Professor of Clinical Surgery at Glasgow, died yesterday at his residence in Glasgow, at the age of 85. Sir Hector had constituted himself one of the guardians of the traditions of Lister, of whom he was a pupil and assistant. On the occasion of the centenary last year, he published a modest book of reminiscences in which he related the steps by which Lister arrived at his great discovery in the little ward in the old Royal Infirmary in Glasgow which has now been reconstituted in the Wellcome Historical Museum in London. The son of a sugar-planter in Demerara, where he was born on September 30, 1843, Cameron was educated at St. Andrews, Edinburgh, and Glasgow Universities, and qualified M.B., C.M., at Glasgow in 1866, proceeding M.D. in 1868. He received his early training under Lord Lister, who was Professor of surgery at Glasgow University from 1860 to 1859, an office which Cameron was destined himself to fill. He was associated with Glasgow University for the rest of his life, and at the time of his death was Dean of Faculties, an office to which he was appointed in 1921. He was President of the Faculty of Physicians, and Surgeons of Glasgow from 1897 to 1900, when he received the honour of knighthood. He had also been the representative of the Faculty at the General Medical Council. He was also Red Cross Commissioner for Western Scotland, and was made C.B.E. in 1918. In 1872 he married Frances, daughter of Mr. William Hamilton Macdonald, and was left a widower in 1879. He leaves with one daughter two sons, one of whom, Dr. Hector Charles Cameron, F.R.C.P., has long been associated with Guy's Hospital.	1928	Nov	23
