In the early days of postal service, postage was paid by the recipient and mail was picked up at a "postoffice" -- often a general store. Postmasters were authorized to publish a list of letters left at the postoffice in a local newspaper.

Marriage: Abt. 1835, Gorham Twp. Ontario Co NY

Children of Myron Morris and Elvira Blodgett are:

- 12 i. Martin⁴ Morris, born Abt. 1836.
- 13 ii. Arminda Morris, born Abt. 1837. She married Philo Thomas; born September 11, 1831.

Notes for Philo Thomas:

PHILO THOMAS

Born September 11, 1831, in Alfred, Allegheny County, New York. Married Arminda Morris (parents Myron and Elvira Morris) on December 1858 in Brighton, Ohio. Ceremony performed by Thomas H. Delamanitis. Philo and Arminda lived a short while in Detroit, Michigan before moving up north to a wilderness area, now known as Hemlock. They were the first permanent settlers in the area. Arminda stated that the trip from Detroit took several days, and they arrived long after darkness had settled over the forest.

She was a small dignified woman and though apprehensive about her future she was happy and anxious to start her life in the small log cabin which Philo had provided on an earlier trip to the area. She often retold the story how she had to look straight up to see the sky because of the dense hemlock forest.

The town of Hemlock came into existence because of a traveller named Glasby, when he found it necessary to stop over at this mid point in the wilderness, on his trips from St. Louis to Saginaw. Glasby would stay over with the Philo Thomas family. Some time later Glasby decided to buy land and build a sawmill. Philo told him he could have the land free and clear if he would build the mill. Arminda sold a parcel of land to First Methodist Episcopal Church on June 16, 1888, for one dollar.

My dad (Jack Ault) remembers his grandmother Vina talking about when the town built the church. The men all volunteered their labor, Philo volunteered building materials and the wives cooked and put on quite a spread for all the workers. Philo was the first blacksmith in Hemlock and his shop (built in 1870) was across the road from the current Catholic Church on Gratiot Rd. About 1890 the first telephone in town could be used for calling other towns and Philo was the first Central. His telephone office was in the post office since he was Postmaster at the time. Philo held many municipal positions during his life in Hemlock including Justice of the Peace in the mid eighteen nineties.

Most of the land in the north half of Hemlock was owned by Philo and Arminda, with Arminda owning the lions share. Arminda was a woman ahead of her time. She not only raised her family and kept the home but she is credited with teaching the local Native American population English and was a shrewd but generous business woman. She made sure her children were either set up in their own business or equally provided for. It was stated that she was always deeply interested in every movement for the welfare of the community. Parley and LaVerge (Virgil) were set up with their own businesses and Philo built the house that they gave to Lavina and her husband John S. Ault. Philo passed away February 3, 1905, in Hemlock, Michigan. Arminda lived in Hemlock for some years after Philos death and then moved in with her son Parley in Breckenridge until her death, December 13, 1912. They are both buried in the Philo A. Thomas plot in Richland Township cemetery

2 killed in collision

CHRIS TISCH

Herald Staff Writer

Two people were killed and two others were seriously injured after a pickup was rear-ended and pushed into the path of an oncoming car in east Manatee County on Monday afternoon, Florida Highway Patrol troopers reported.

Elma A. McCance, 65, of 17212 Waterline Road, and Merrill McCance, 73, of Addison, Mich., were killed when a pickup they were riding in collided head-on with a car on State Road 64 near Carlos E. Haile Middle School about six miles east of Bradenton.

The driver of their pickup, Marion McCance, 69, also of 17212 Waterline Road, was taken by Bayflite helicopter to Bayfront Medical Center in St. Petersburg. The driver of the car they collided with, William W. Ward, 39, of Tampa also was flown to Bayfront. Marion McCance was listed in fair condition at the hospital, while Ward was still in the emergency room Monday night, a nursing supervisor said.

According to troopers:

At about 12:05 p.m., the McCance vehicle was westbound on State Road 64 and slowing down as it approached Haile Middle School. It was hit in the rear by a pickup driven by Eric Lynn Miller, 35, of 2705 Sixth St. W., who did not slow down. Miller swerved his truck to the right shoulder, but it struck the right rear of the McCance truck, sending it into the eastbound lane into the path of Ward's car, which was traveling about 55 mph. The two vehicles struck head-on. "He (Miller) rolled up on them quickly and didn't realize there was such a difference in speed," said highway patrol Sgt. Tom Przybylowicz.

The McCance truck spun around and wound up on the south shoulder, while Ward's car rotated and came to rest in the middle of the road. Traffic had to be rerouted while troopers investigated the crash.

Both Elma and Merrill McCance were killed on impact. Miller was not injured. He was charged with careless driving and failing to wear corrective lenses. Alcohol was not a factor. Everyone involved in the accident was wearing seat belts.

Arrived on the ship Hector in 1637.

The distant genealogy of the Morris family as preserved by some of its branches, carries us back to the times of Athelstein" and Alfred, who reigned in England in the 9th and 10th centuries. The name occurs under various orthographies, as Maruice, Morys, Morres, Morice, Moris, Morrise, Morriss, Morris, and several, others confounded with Fitz Clan, Mount, Do, and various initial expressions. It is stated to be in part a corruption from Mars, or Mavors, the old Roman God of War. it is of Welsh origin, its elements being as given by one authority. Mawr rwyce or as given by another (and certainly with a stronger inherent probability*) Mawy--rhys . The first derivation is said to give the meaning Warlike, powerful in war, though the process is not obvious. The second gives the meaning without any onscurity in the mode. The word "rhys" denotes a rushing. Let this idea be combined with that of the God of War, and we have the sense of warlike in its utmost intensity. Whichever of them be adopted, it is easy to note the following stages of progress: Mawr--ryce, Maw--rice, Morrice, Morris.

From so remote an ancestral stock, we might reasonably expect to find traces of a numerous and widely scattered progeny. Nor are we disappointed. The name ts extand with numerous and honorable representatives in England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland and America, and doubtless in many other countries. In its remotest antiquity, it is associated with blood scenes, and heathen myths. It has a subsequent history that is redolent of a high toned Christian piety. The name appears about twice among the martyrs who fell in the reign of the Bloody Mary and has a place in the history of the parliamentary struggle with Charles the first, and in some of the campaigns of Cromwell. But before that contest began, before the long parliament assembled, the very year in fact that Hampden commenced his resistance to the arbitrary exactions of the English monarch, the company in which we find our pilgrim ancestor left the old world for the new. They arrived in Massachusetts June 3rd, 1637. On March 30, 1638 they sailed from Boston for Innnipiac, now New Haven, and in about a fortnight arrived at the latter place in safety. They were mostly Londoners, men whose business had been commerce, and who hoped to establish themselves in the same employment in America. From this fact, it is easy to understand why Thomas Morris, should have been among them. He was a ship-builder, and would have occasion to exercise his vocation in such a community.

He signed the Plantation Covenant in 1638 by which instrument they engaged that, as in matters that concern the gathering and ordering of a church, so also in all public offices, which concern civil order as choice of magistrates and officers, making and repealing laws, dividing allotments of inheritance, and all things of a like nature, they would all of them be ordered by the rules which the Scripture held forth to them.

A singular incident (*) having made him acquainted with the nature of the soil, and the excellence of the timber for ship building on the tract of land now known as Morris Point, he purchased it on the 16th day of March, 1671. He left his team on the edge of a declivity, the base of which met the water of the harbor. A company of young people visiting at his home coveted the sport of seeing the cart roll down the bank, so put it in motion. They did not calculate on the velocity it would acquire in the descent, nor the distance to which it would move, and soon beheld it floating out too great a distance to be reached, and drifting in the direction of the cove on the East Haven side, where it was driven ashore. It was in his excursion to obtain the cart that brought the timber and soil under his notice.

From him, it passed into the hands of his son, Eleazer, from whom it was inherited in turn by his son, John. John had no children, and gave it to Amos, one of the sons of his brother, James. This Amos was the first proprietor who resided upon the farm and it has never ceased to be in the hands of his descendants. Amos was a man of extraordinary enterprise and of undoubted piety, a Puritan of the best type, and a deacon in the East Haven Church. He had in his own possession, the means of carrying on commerce abroad and his papers show that he did traffic with some of the West Indies ports. His wharf accomodated vessels of considerable size, and his warehouse often contained large quantities of goods. He also carried on the manufacture of salt, and had a building with fine boilers for that purpose. His enterprise and public spirit are still further seen in the fact that he bought the land and constructed at his own expense the causeway that leads from the cove to the road by which the meeting house is approached from all sections of the town, a gigantic work to be undertaken by a single man in those days. His history reaches down to the era of the Revolution , and offers some interesting incidents pertaining to those times.

Did this Thomas have a brother John Morris, whose wife Elizabeth also lived in New Haven for some time?

"Thomas Morris, whose name appears among the Milford group at Newark in 1666, was the forefather of the Morris family of Bloomfield-he died at New Haven in 1673, and it is possible that the original records read "John" instead of "Thomas" and that Thomas never left Connecticut. John (2) and his wife Elizabeth said in 1668 to have been "late of New Haven", had two sons, John and Philip. The father, John(2) died about 1675. John(3), born the year Newark was settled, was the actual founder of the family, his brother having no children. He is called "Captain" in the records and arose from "Sergeant" . John cleared the land and settle personally on the tract to be later called the Morris Neighborhood. He was at one time Sheriff of Essex County. He lived to the ripe old age of eighty three years, and saw great developments in this region. John Morris(3) testified in the land controversies about 1740 that he had occupied his lands for many years, showing that he personally settled on his plantation near Third River. His sons were Stephen(4), who was born in 1706 and died in 1781; and John Jr, whose will is dated 1729. Ephraim(5), son of Stephen, married Johanna Davis, and his son Stephen(6) married in 1799 Catharine Smith. Their children were Ephraim(7), Jacob, James, Joseph, Mary, Emeline, H ulin and Albert.

This is an every-name index to the work entitled: Genealogy of the Morris family: descendants of Thomas Morris of Connecticut / compiled by Lucy Ann (Morris) Carhart; edited by Charles Alexander Nelson. New York: A. S. Barnes, c1911. Includes Barnes, Beecher, Blakeslee, Bradley, Collins, Hemingway, Holt, Kellogg, Nash, Smith and related families.
