

HARRISON COUNTY INFIRMARY

The Infirmary institution was first organized in this county at a special meeting of the commissioners, in April, 1825. There have been five buildings erected, the one that preceded the present building burned down in 1903, and the building shown in the picture, was completed in 1905. It is modern in every detail, and cost approximately $65,000. The Infirmary farm contains 400 acres. The present Infirmary directors are: N. E. Cludennin, William Reynard, Wylie Jamison.

J. G. AND MARY J. ROGERS

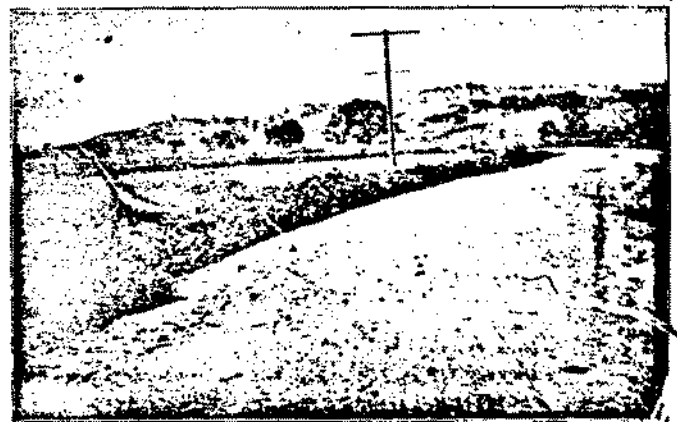

Superintendent and Matron of the
Harrison County Infirmary

Mr. J. G. Rogers, the present superintendent of the County Infirmary, is a native of the County, born on the farm April 25, 1871, in Cadiz township, and is the son of John B. and Rosana Rogers. His education was in the district schools. Born and reared on the farm, he has always followed farming and stock raising. In April, 1907, he was appointed superintendent of the Infirmary, and his administration of the office has been practical, painstaking and successful. He is a Mason, a Republican, popular wherever known, and conceded the man for the place he fills. In 1905 he married Mary J. Dickerson, of Athens township, daughter of Joseph B. and Sarah L. Dickerson, appointed matron of the Infirmary at the time Mr. Rogers was made superintendent, she has met every requirement of the position and a visit to the institution will convince the taxpayers that she and her husband have made a great success of their work.
