NEWSPAPER Issue of Friday, MARCH 15, 1867

DEATH OF JUDGE D.F. JONES

It is with feelings of profound sadness that we announce the death of Judge D.F. JONES at his residence in this village on Thursday last, after a protracted illness. In the bloom of life and the vigor of health, the deceased was suddenly prostrated upon a bed of sickness and for six long, weary months, gradually wasted away before the insidious destroyer, Consumption. Nothing was wanting with which the kind love and unremitting care and tender assiduities of sympathetic relatives and friends could furnish to cheer his declining hours; and above all, he was sustained by the consolations which spring from the well of the Christian faith. The dark valley was illuminated by the star of his Christian hope, and the trials and afflictions of the sick chamber were probably designed by a kind Providence to chasten and purify the spirit for the inheritance of the Saints in Light.

The deceased was a native of our district and here the greater portion of his life was passed. Enjoying the best of academic training, he was sent to the South Carolina College, and there exhibited all those sterling qualities of mind and heart, which through life, secured for him the respect and esteem and the love of his associates.

Selecting the Law as his profession, he was admitted to the Bar and henceforth devoted himself to the study and practice of his profession. Upon the creation of the office of District Judge, his eminent fitness for the position immediately suggested his name and he was elected without opposition. And now, when he seemed about to realize the promise of his youth, and to grasp the merited rewards and honors of his profession, the destroyer came to lay in the dust all hopes of human ambition. Inscrutable are the dispensations of Providence.

His life was gentle and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, "This was a man!"

The funeral services took place at Trinity Church on Wednesday evening last and after an admirable sermon from the Rev. Dr. D. McNeill Turner, on "Submission to the Divine Will" from the text "Nevertheless, not my will, but Thine be done", the remains were consigned to their last resting place in the presence of sorrowing relatives and friends.
